Julius Rosenwald This Earth, Our Hot House Mother Said, Die. They Died Why Steal Neckties?

By Arthur Brisbane

JULIUS S. ROSENWALD died yesterday. Sorrowful news for many. He had helped millions and earned the admiration of other millions by his ceaseless, active benevolence. A fine type of the American business man, he worked endlessly and successfully in the field of intense competition, passing on to those in need the fruits of his labor. Among rich men, his generosity has perhaps not been equalled, considering the amount of his fortune. He built a great name for his company, Sears, Roebuck, and an infinitely greater name for himself.

Fortunately he leaves in his son, Lessing Rosenwald, and other children those that will carry on benevolent plans that death has checked. And as executive head and president of his business, he leaves Gen. Wood, well trained in the American army, well chosen by Mr. Rosenwald, thoroughly tried through difficult years, and reassuring to his stockholders.

Dr. Keesom, of Holland, has produced in his laboratory a temperature close to absolute zero, which is "the entire absence of heat," fixed by science at 491 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. Dr. Keesom produced a temperature of 459 below in a space of 10 cubic centimeters.

In that temperature we live and roll on our little planet with its tropics and warm sunshine. Four hundred and ninety-one degrees below zero is all around us, in the ether, outside of our few miles of atmosphere.

We should be grateful to God for this finite hot house provided so mercifully in infinite time and space.

The Young brothers, Harry and Jennings, killed a man, then killed six others, in a fight for freedom. Their mother, nearly 70, sent word through the newspapers, "Kill yourselves, rather than be caught." They did it, shot each other to death, one in his last breath calling out to the besieging posse, "Come and get us, we are dead." Nothing in Wild West literature can surpass that.

The prison of this life has a very thin wall. Those that will go through easily and settle with all authorities, EXCEPT those on the other side of the wall. That EXCEPT keeps many here.

Crowds on Fifth ave., New York, yesterday watched thieves running, policemen shooting. The thieves had stolen neckties. Fifth ave. merchants looking, wondered what the thieves intended to do with neckties, how they intended to sell them. If they had a definite plan they could make more money revealing it than they could by theft.

One ingenious little merchant in a small New York street had in his window a sign that amused Max D. Steuer, the able lawyer, and some of his friends as they drove by. It said, "The Depression Is Over, the Panic Is on. Neckties 25 Cents."

The thieves should have consulted him.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York, addressing the Legislature yesterday, formally entered the race for the Democratic nomination in 1932, not in so many words, but in fact.

Looking toward Washington, he "viewed with alarm" President Hoover's doings and mapping out his views for restoring state and national prosperity he takes his place as head of the Democratic party.

Several others, known and not known, hope and expect to take that place from him before the convention meets.

Opportunity is here for those that have ready money, and some in the world of opportunity have success forced upon them. The Chase National Bank, by compulsion of business methods, sues to foreclose a mortgage of sixteen millions on the Lincoln Building in New York city.

That building cost thirty millions and will, in a normal future, bring in two and a half millions per cent on fifty millions of dollars, after upkeep and taxes.

Japan jails five British seamen as spies. They were not spies, only admiring Japanese scenery.

Japan at this moment of war is nervous and excited. But let us not criticise too freely. We did some foolish things, believed some foolish yarns in the war, and set detectives on our best air fighter, because he had a German name.

We should demand our rights and protect our nationalities, but it is too soon to forget that some of our local officials shot dead two young men, one the nephew of Mexico's President, for no reason apparently except that they were not Americans

DRIVER SAYS MAIL TRUCK NEVER LOCKED

$100,000 IN POUCH HELD ONLY BY BAR

Lowell Postal Thieves Had Easy Access to Bag While En Route to Station

Lowell, Jan. 7—Arrests in connection with the theft of a registered mail pouch containing $100,000 appeared imminent today as Boston postal inspectors suddenly switched the scene of their inquiry to police headquarters.

Important clues obtained early today made it imperative to call in Arthur Skaff, driver of the truck which delivered the mailbag at the railroad station, for a rechecking of certain facts connected with the mystery.

Capt. David Petrie, chief of the Lowell police detective bureau, in the presence of the postoffice inspectors, questioned Skaff for two hours and then stated to newspapermen that he was convinced the driver's story was straightforward.

It was brought out, however, that the rear doors of the truck in which Skaff carries the mail from the central postoffice to the Boston & Maine station are never locked, being held shut with a bar.

NO RAILROAD RECEIPT

Another fact disclosed today is that while Skaff, who is not a government employe, has to give a receipt to postal clerks when he received pouches for them, he gets none from the railroad employes who takes the mailbags from his truck.

Skaff was in tears during some of the questioning as he insisted that he was innocent and did not even have any suspicion at any time that he was being watched by mail thieves.

He said he always took the same route to the station—Appleton st., to Eliot st., to Middlesex st. and along Middlesex st. to the depot, a distance of half a mile, and taking about four minutes.

CHECKUP ON AUTOS

An effort is being made to check up on all taxicabs and private automobiles parked in the vicinity of the station on New Year's eve, the night of the robbery.

It was revealed, however, that a large number of cars were parked near the station because of a dance in a nearby ballroom.

The authorities believe the bag

Hoover Rushes Relief Fight

ACTION URGED TODAY ON 2 BILLION BILL

Credit Measure Is Expected to Pass in Senate After a Fight by Opposition

Washington, Jan. 7 (INS)—The Hoover administration was prepared today to force Senate approval of its $2,000,000,000 governmental credit corporation bill before nightfall.

President Hoover urged administration leaders to rush its passage through the Senate, because it would tend to reopen paralyzed credit channels, restore business confidence and conribute to a resumption of employment in industry.

Its opposition termed the bill as a measure to aid the banks, which brought on the depression, and to boom stock market prices.

EXPECTED TO PASS

The bill would create a $500,000,000 corporation with funds from the treasury, backed by a $1,500,000,000 bond issue to be guaranteed by the treasury. All these resources would be available for extending credit to business, agriculture and banks.

It was apparent the bill would pass the Senate, but a small determined opposition will air their grievances before final vote is taken. The opposition has charged the administration with aiding Europe first and the bankers second without proposing any direct relief for the starving unemployed.

The issue was directly raised when Senator Smith (D.) of South Carolina sponsored an amendment, appropriating $200,000,000 from the treasury for direct federal relief for unemployed, it will have to be voted on by the Senate.

OTHER BILLS PENDING

The fight against the bill will revolve around the contention that it means the government must stand all losses of the corporation. To this Senator Walcott (R.) of Connecticut, its author, replied:

"We hope to get back the principal with enough interest to cover the operating expenses of the corporation."

UNIT OF FR. COX'S "ARMY" ARRIVING

FR. COX ARMY MARCH ON CONGRESS

Hoover to Receive Priest Who Led 20,000 to Washington; Police Out; Crowd Orderly

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—More than 10,000 unemployed men were fed at the foot of Capitol Hill this morning to begin a day that will take them to the doors of Congress to petition for help.

After breakfast they roamed about the Capitol. It was estimated late arrivals would swell the "army" to 20,000.

Stiff from a night spent in cramped and crowded sleeping quarters, many of them under blankets drenched by the rainstorm that ushered them into the city, the followers of Father James R. Cox of Pittsburgh consumed hundreds of gallons of coffee and thousands of doughnuts and rolls.

BEGIN THEIR MARCH.

Eight army rolling kitchens from Fort Myer provided the food.

The marchers began to form lines shortly before 11 o'clock preparatory to starting the parade.

A scattering of war-time uniforms of wooden elbows appeared in the line and a number wore service overcoats issued more than a decade ago. Most were unshaven.

Two banners reading "Long Live the Rev. Cox" and "Experienced Men from Father Cox's Army Are Needed in the Cabinet" were raised prominently back in the line.

Informed breakfast would be served, thousands of the marchers, most of whom had had nothing to eat since noon yesterday, descended on the kitchens.

POLICE ON GUARD.

The feeding started at 7:30 and continued for three hours, but the supply of rolls and doughnuts furnished by District of Columbia relief organizations ran out before everyone was served.

More than 300 extra policemen were drawn up in front of the Capitol, but such jobless men as came were admitted freely, although some of the doors were kept locked to permit a careful police scrutiny of those entering the main portals.

Extra details of police were stationed in the halls, but there was no sign of disorder when the doors were opened to the visitors.

The visitors inspected with all the Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 7 (AP)—David Lloyd George arrived with his wife and daughter today from a tour of the East Indies.

Sloan Warns Against More Wage-Cutting

Warning that to "let nature run its course," will mean further deflation and an ultimate reduction of "not 10 per cent in wages but considerably more" was given today at a Boston Chamber of Commerce luncheon by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., motor magnate.

In his talk, Sloan emphasized that:

Through the drastic reduction of income of the individual, we are narrowing the spread between that income and the necessaries of life.

The people of the world are not going to accept the lowest standards of living.

The underlying cause of the world situation at present is a collapse of credit brought about by substitution of political for economic control of the world's commerce and financial relationships.

In beginning his talk, and dealing with co-operative action in trade, Sloan said:

"The spirit of co-operation and helpfulness to those in want, which has attended the present situation, is an inspiration to all and is in itself a measure of progress that we have made, but it should be recognized that we can help importantly, and perhaps more fundamentally, by buying as well as by giving."

EX-WIFE SUES R. W. CHILD

A "friendly suit" has been launched in New York against Richard Washburn Child, Back Bay author and former ambassador to Italy, by his first wife, asking $2144 which she alleges is overdue for support of their children, Anne, 13, and Constance, 11.

Mrs. Edmund Paverstadt, the former Maude Parker Child, herself an author, gave the suit its halo of "friendliness" by withdrawing an attachment she had placed on his Newport property.

Child agreed to pay $3000 a year for the children's support when the couple separated in 1926. Last July $2000 was due and he paid only $791, and in October he paid only $646, the former Mrs. Child asserts. Child has been thrice married since his first wife divorced him.

DEMOCRATS WAIT SMITH'S SPEECH TO LEARN STAND

OTHERS BLOOM OUT AS PARTY HEADS MEET

Lineup of the Candidates for Nomination to Be Definitely Known by Saturday

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 7 (INS)—National Democratic leaders assembled in the capital today to the swish of candidatorial hats being hurled into the presidential ring.

AWAIT SMITH'S SPEECH

Ex-Governor Smith arrived in Washington last night to participate in the party conclaves and to lend support to his effervescent friend, Chairman John J. Raskob, to see to it that the next Democratic platform does not ignore the issue that lies close to their hearts —prohibition.

"Al" had nothing to say—yet.

"I'll do my talking tomorrow night," he grinned, in response to questions.

He referred to the Jackson dinner tomorrow night, at which he is to be one of the principal speakers. It is a speech that is awaited with almost feverish expectancy by Democrats of all classes, for from it they hope to be able to chart "Al's" course in 1932.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's attacks on the Hoover administration's "lack of leadership" in the world economic crisis was accepted on all sides as being the opening gun in his campaign for the presidency.

In Baltimore tonight, before a distinguished assemblage of Democrats from all parts of the country, Gov. Albert G. Ritchie, Maryland's four-time governor, will make it clear he is not adverse to becoming Democracy's presidential hope in 1932.

How many other candidacies may bloom in Washington tomorrow and Saturday is a matter of conjecture. But at the Jackson Day jubilees dinner tomorrow night such orators as Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox are to hold forth, and on the following day the Democratic national committee meets to select place and time for the June convention.

HASN'T REVEALED STAND

Few Democrats really believe Smith is a receptive candidate. On the other hand, he has never, by words or deed, taken himself out of consideration. Hence the expectancy concerning his speech. His position is now uncomparable to that of Calvin Coolidge prior to the famous "I do not choose to run" announcement.

Smith will speak first at the banquet, to be followed by John W. Davis, the 1924 candidate, with James M. Cox, the 1920 standard bearer, speaking last. Newbold is David considered a candidate, but the same cannot be said of Cox, for he endorsed himself in the party moderate at the turbulent meeting of the national committee here in March by a truly eloquent appeal for party harmony. It is reported that Gov. Cox is prepared to make "the speech of his life" tomorrow night.

Instead of the usual pyrotechnics that accompany a meeting of the national committee, there is now every prospect that it will be a—for Democrats—a fairly harmonious meeting.

THREE CITIES BID

Chairman Raskob's decision not to attempt to put the national committee on record in favor of his "home rule" plan for liquor control has removed one of the chief danger spots.

The inter-city fight for the convention promises to be hard fought, with Chicago, San Francisco and Atlantic City the principal contenders. Both Chicago and San Francisco will present certified checks for $150,000. While Atlantic City's precise bid remains to be disclosed.

Chelsea Man Given 4 to 8-Year Term

Henry Pianka, 21, of 87 Pearl st., Chelsea, was sentenced to four to eight years in State prison by Judge Louis S. Cox in Suffolk Superior Court upon five counts of breaking and entering in the night time and larceny and one count of attempted breaking and entering.

The railroad is responsible for mail while in its possession awaiting the arrival of trains, according to postoffice officials, one of whom said that was shown in a theft of $1800 in Norwood some years ago.

TRUSTWORTHY WORKMAN.

Skaff, who is the employe of Henry Awen, who holds the contract for delivering mail to the trains, returned to his home in Adams st. after today's questioning. He was at work as usual last night and was in bed when Inspector Clark and Sergt. Joseph Johnson called for him this morning to take him to headquarters. Awen considers Skaff, who is the father of five children, a highly trustworthy workman.

Suggestions that a New Hampshire gang which figured in a big mail robbery in New England a few years ago were involved in the Lowell theft, were not entirely rejected by postal inspectors, but they do not place much emphasis on this theory.

25 ARE QUESTIONED

Twenty-five persons have been questioned by police and postoffice inspectors. Several besides Skaff will be requestioned, it was stated.

Theft of the money, which was en route from the Union-Old Lowell National Bank to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, occurred New Year's eve, but was not discovered until this week.

The Boston Evening American learned today that the ace of the nation's postal detectives may be summoned here to aid in solution of the mystery.

UNDER-COVER PROBE

Authoritative sources revealed that George Pate, of Cleveland, O., might be sent here to assist Boston inspectors who are working with Lowell police and postal officials.

Pate is considered the outstanding man in the postal inspection service throughout the country. He recently was the principal figure in the recovery of $1,000,000 in liberty bonds and currency stolen from a Toledo, O., postoffice.

Six Die in Storm

London, Jan. 7—Storms from Portugal to Scandinavia and floods caused six deaths yesterday.

HOOVER FIGHTS TARIFF BILL

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury today told the House ways and means committee that the administration is strongly opposed to the Democratic tariff bill.

Responding to the invitation of Chairman Collier, Mills appeared at hearings on the tariff as representative of the Treasury, State and Commerce departments.

At the outset of his remarks, when hearings were resumed today, he said:

The Treasury does not approve of this measure and sees no occasion for it.

"Its intent is to deprive the President of authority he now possesses."

Mills referred to that provision which would take away the President's authority under the present flexible tariff provision. The bill would authorize the tariff commission to report to Congress on changes in duties, instead of to the President.

HOUSE PUTS OFF 'IMPEACHMENT' OF MELLON

Demand of Rep. Patman to Oust Treasury Head to Be Heard Next Week

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Consideration of the Patman resolution impeaching Secretary Mellon was postponed today by the House Judiciary Committee until next week.

This cation was agreed upon by committee members because of the delay in having the resolution reach the committee formally through parliamentary channels.

Year after year one member or another has suggested that something of the sort be done, or demanded his resignation, questioning the right of so wealthy a man, stockholder in many corporations, to hold the purse strings of the nation. Attempts have been made to force him out.

But it awaited Democratic control of the House and the determination of Rep. Wright Patman of Texas actually to start impeachment of the veteran financier. How far the ouster move will get remains to be seen.

UNDER LAW OF 1789

"High crimes and misdemeanors" was the general—and required—designation of the accusations. Violation of a law of 1789, designed to prevent Treasury secretaries from engaging in business or commerce was the principal charge, accompanied by the agument that heavy stockholdings in industrial concerns shipping lines, etc., do constitute commercial activity. The point has been much debated.

MANY OUSTER ATTEMPTS

Indexes to files of news concerning Sec. Mellon are full of such notations as these:

Nov. 5, 1921—Sen. Lafollette demands he quit treasury.

March 31, 1924—Senate drive fizzles out.

March 12, 1927—Sen. Norris demands he resign.

March 23, 1927—Sen. Couzens demands he resign.

March 27, 1931—Rep. Patman will move to impeach.

Sept. 28, 1931—Rep. Patman to renew fight.

Patman's earlier move came to nothing, starting up on no chance under a Republican-controlled House which brooked no opposition to the administration.

PINCHOT FOR U. S. PROSPERITY LOAN

Pennsylvania Governor Insists More Federal Aid Is Needed

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7 (INS)—Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania thinks the two major problems confronting the American people today are:

1—Handling the tremendous situation created by the unemployment.

2—Getting ready to prevent another such depression as we have now from happening again."

URGES FEDERAL AID

"Over-concentration of wealth," he believes is chiefly responsible.

He advocates federal aid for the jobless. He is opposed to a dole, so-called, but thinks the government should immediately borrow billions to meet the unemployment crisis. He said the more he thinks of a $5,000,000,000 federal appropriation to create work relief the better he thinks of it.

Governor Pinchot, whose name has been mentioned as a presidential possibility, had "not a word to say" on politics. He is a Progressive-Republican and a dry.

MUM ON CANDIDACY

His name has come up in connection with the threatened third party movement. He refused, however, to say whether or not he would head a third party ticket in the event a third party was formed. In 1912, when Col. Theodore Roosevelt led the "Bull Moose" movement, Pinchot was one of his strongest supporters.

Governor Pinchot is 66 years old, but much younger looking. He is tall and spare, ruddy-cheeked, partly bald, with a fringe of gray hair and a gray mustache.

Governor Pinchot told International News Service it is not enough simply to relieve the suffering of the unemployed and their families. He said it was "the obvious duty" of every unit of government to do what it can.

NATION'S AID NEEDED

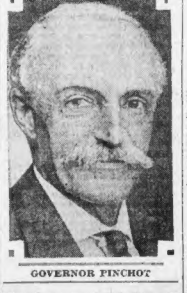
"The efforts of all put together cannot be sufficient because the annual payroll losses in this country are something like $10,000,000,000 a year," said Gov. Pinchot. "In Pennsylvania the annual payroll loss is $1,000,000,000.

"Even if all the organizations, from town ships to counties, from counties to states, did their part there still would be a large place to be filled by national contributions. That's why I have done all I could since last August to demand that the nation take part in direct relief."

Gov. Pinchot insisted the nation is "doing something." He declared the government had obtained work for seven million men. Figures in Washington, D. C., but, Pinchot pointed out, that is not enough. He said that on December 26 last Pennsylvania alone had 28,283 men directly employed on roads.



GOVERNOR PINCHOT

MANY NEEDY IGNORED

"We in Pennsylvania," said Pinchot, "are doing more than one-half of what Mr. Hoover is doing nationally in this respect."

Pinchot said the thing he objects to in the Hoover-Gifford plan of relief is that it does not cover all the people. He added that in Pennsylvania about one-half are covered. In many cases, he asserted, the amounts to be raised are dictated by what social workers think can be raised rather than what is needed.

The governor said he is in hearty sympathy with the proposals of Senators La Follette and Costigan that the government borrow $250,000,000 a year to meet the unemployment crisis.

OPPOSED TO DOLE

Asked if he is in favor of a dole, Pinchot's face clouded for a second as he said:

"The people who are in the habit of opposing a government contribution call it a dole. But when considering the same kind of a state contribution or city contribution they do not call it a dole.

"Nobody is for a dole. I'm not. It is playing dirty ball to call a contribution by the nation a dole and a contribution by the state not a dole."

(In tomorrow's interview with Mr. Kilgallen, Gov. Pinchot will discuss the over-concentration of wealth and its effect upon the country.)

800 BILLION IN LATIN LOANS IN DEFAULT

Federal Expert Says Money Was Advanced Despite the Warnings by Government

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Further testimony that private loans were floated in this country for South American countries despite adverse information at the Commerce Department was presented today to the Senate finance committee.

James C. Corliss, specialist on Latin-American finance in the commerce department, testified that Latin-America had over-boomed by 1928 and 1929.

He said the commerce department's information was available for any American citizen.

800 MILLION FLOATED

More than $800,000,000 worth of Latin-American bonds floated in this country since the war are now in default, he said.

The committee was told yesterday the commerce department and "reluctantly" given its consent in 1928 to a $23,000,000 loan to Bolivia because of troubled diplomatic relations with Latin-America.

Corliss told the committee again of the department's adverse reports on financial conditions in Bolivia and Colombia previous to loans in those countries and of the competition of American bankers to arrange Latin-American loans.

"But, generally speaking, the borrowers were seeking the lenders?" asked Senator Johnson, Republican, California.

"Yes, sir," Corliss replied.

JUST GAVE FACTS

Grosvenor Jones, chief of the finance division of the Commerce Department, said Dillon, Read & Co., which floated the $23,000,000 Bolivian loan had not consulted him.

He said that while the law did not allow him to disseminate his judgment on such loans.

that the United States is not nearly as bad off, relatively, as would first seem, he said that funded mentals were the same as they always have been—that the people are not going to accept the lowest standards of living, but are going to demand a higher and higher standard and, that while this applies particularly to the United States, it applies to all the people of the world.

MARVELOUS RESOURCES

"Here we still have the most marvelous resources," he said. "We have 125,000,000 people able to deal with one another without economic barriers so detrimental to progress. These people have in no sense stagnated. They are endowed with the same inventive genius, the same ability of organization, the same ambition to do bigger and better things.

"It seems to me it is perfectly possible, through the adjustment of our credit structure, to stabilize prices at their present level or even at a higher level than in harmony with the present trend of wages.

"This really means, in effect, that we must broaden our base of credit but without in any sense departing from present monetary standards. Such a process would be justified on the theory that deflation had largely overrun its course."

PRODUCE AND USE MORE

He urged that the economic problem be approached from the standpoint of a comparison with 1921, which represents a corresponding point of the previous business cycle.

"We find," he said, "that even this year, notwithstanding our subnormal rate of activity, we are producing more steel, more copper, more motor cars and almost everything than we did at that time, and by a wide margin, and we are consuming far more than we are producing."

STATE POLICE TRAP HIM IN BOLD HOAX

Fake Physician Is Enjoying a Growing Practice When Scheme Is Exposed

Worcester, Jan. 7 — They thought he was a doctor—they thought he was two doctors, in fact—but he was only a steam engineer.

Arthur G. Byman, 40, of Auburn, pleaded guilty in district court here today to unlawful practice of medicine and an amazing story of dual personality and deceit was unfolded by the state police.

Byman began posing as a physician in Auburn and hung out his shingle: "Dr. A. G. Byman."

OPENS SECOND OFFICE

He was doing so well with his practice there that he hit upon the idea of administering to the ailing of Brookfield, 18 miles away.

Brookfield has no resident physician, so Byman went there a week ago and established an office and hung out another shingle: "Dr. H. O. Royal."

It was "Good morning Dr. Byman," in Auburn and "Good evening, Dr. Royal," in Brookfield. What he did with his spare time wasn't revealed.

POLICE END HOAX.

Anyway, the State police in some manner got wind of this unprecedented dual hoax (even Jr. Jekyll didn't dare he Mr. Hyde) and they called upon Dr. Royal at Brookfield.

"Dr. Royal" admitted to them that "Dr. Byman" of Auburn was his associate.

"A very brilliant man, very, but I doubt if he has a license," he said. "I'm going to sever my connections with him. I, myself, am a graduate of Harvard."

The police demanded to be shown Dr. Royal's license and he couldn't produce. Finally he told all and produced the only license he had—one issued to Arthur G. Byman to run a steam engine.

State Police Sergt. Richard Townsend directed the prosecution. Byman was given a suspended sentence of three months and placed on probation for three years

GOODWIN CALLS MEETING OF EMPLOYES

State Workers Plan a Bitter Battle to Balk Proposed Reduction in Salaries

A bitter battle against Gov. Ely's proposal to cut their salaries 10 per cent, if earning $2000 or more, will be launched Saturday by state employes, whose organization is headed by Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission.

Goodwin announced today that he has called a meeting of the Commonwealth Service Club, the State employes' association, for Saturday, at which meeting Governor Ely's proposal will be considered.

A storm of protest greeted the Governor's proposal, made in his annual message to the Legislature yesterday, and officials and groups in various sections of the State united in opposition.

Leading in the protest against the message was Mayor Curley, who condemned a restrictive policy against municipal borrowing and suggested that the governor reverse his present opinion, favoring public works construction on an even larger scale than that of last year. The mayor made no comment on the proposal of a 10 per cent salary reduction for state employes receiving $2000 or more annually.

FEARS RESORT TO DOLE

In a public statement last night Mayor Curley protested that further restriction of cities in carrying out public works programs would add to the ranks of the unemployed and force a resort to the dole. He pointed to his recent plans to ask legislative authority for issuing bond issues to carry out a $15,000,000 Huntington ave. subway and a $5,000,000 courthouse addition.

Unless this authority is granted, the mayor stated, at least 5000 heads of families will be deprived of work and the city will be forced to pay them $3,900,000 in unemployment relief.

The mayor late yesterday made plain his determination to maintain present salary scales among Boston's 20,000 city employes. He pointed out that city employes have voluntarily contributed part of their salaries toward relief.

Labor officials accused the governor of placing a club in the hands of every employer in the state for cutting wages, hindering stabilization and eventually resulting in disorganization of the labor and commodity markets.

PLAN "ILL ADVISED"

This last fact was stressed in a joint statement of President James T. Moriarty and Secretary-Treasurer Robert Watt, of the State Federation of Labor. They contend that his proposal would lead employing interests through the state to reduce wages still further. They also question the legality of such a procedure.

Pres. J. Arthur Moriarty of the Boston Central Labor Union, considered the proposal "ill advised" and declared that it opened the door for employers to continue the "wage slashing policy which is rapidly leading to desperation."

Sec. E. A. Johnson of the Building Trades Council said that state employes were underpaid and that they stood out in times like the present as examples of wage earners receiving a steady income.

NAVY TO DELAY CONSTRUCTION

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Secretary Adams told the Senate naval committee today it was "extremely doubtful" whether the navy would ask for any actual appropriations for new construction this year.

'LAME DUCK' IS IN DANGER

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The determination of Senator George W. Norris at last may be rewarded with victory.

For the seventh time he put through the Senate his resolution to abolish the "lame duck" sessions of Congress.

Six times the proposal has gone down to defeat in the House, either shunted aside by the controlling leadership or adopted in such altered form that the Nebraskan would have nothing to do with it.

The Democratic leaders who run things across the Capitol now are for it. The resolution is in their hands, probably for study in a sympathetic committee, and headed for fairly easy adoption. Sentiment in the House membership generally is favorable.

If Norris wins through, the people will have another constitutional amendment to vote on.

PRIEST'S STORY DEEPENS LYNN MYSTERY

A Catholic priest loomed today as a material witness in the probe of LYNN's strange "love deaths."

He attended J. Joseph Ankstell, riding master, who died in the apartment of Miss Dorothy Cloutier in Concord st., two days before the blonde beauty herself met death in a mysterious manner.

The priest, called by Dr. A. P. Bowen, attending physician at both deaths and employer of Miss Cloutier, is expected to inject a time element in the Ankstell death that will show death two hours earlier than reported.

Ankstell is recorded on police records as a victim of death at 7:30 a. m., Dec. 22.

TWO HOURS EARLIER.

The priest who administered last rites was called a few minutes later and has since been quoted in statements that Ankstell was dead at least two hours.

The name of the priest, while it is known to the Boston Evening American and police, has been withheld pending further information from him on his views of the Ankstell death.

He was not called at the time Miss Cloutier died.

Dr. William F. Boos, Harvard toxicologist, said today his report on the vital organs of both victims was ready and would be given by him to Dr. J. Stewart Rooney.

Dr. Boos assisted in the autopsies of Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Breed, performed after exhumation of both bodies.

It was also learned for the first time today, that official details concerning the strange death of the married admirer of blonde Dorothy Cloutier, have never been disclosed.

REPORT AWAITED

While it was announced that the medical examiner's report gave the cause of death as acute alcoholism, police have guarded all other information.

Autopsies revealed that Ankstell did not die of alcoholism, and that Dorothy was not a victim of gas poisoning, as at first declared.

Dr. Boos has been making analyses of the organs of Miss Cloutier and Ankstell since December 30, and, according to Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg, his report will be turned over to Gregg tomorrow.

This report, it is understood, will reveal that traces of poison were found in the organs of both the girl and Ankstell.

"If the report shows that poison was found," said Chief Kane, "we will be ready to proceed on a murder case."

BOY M. P. SEES YOUTH TAKING COMMAND

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

New Yorkw, Jan. 7 (US)—England's youngest member of Parliament sat in the mansion of his wealthy American uncle here and modestly predicted that youth will soon supersede age as the dominent force in world affairs.

He is Roland Robinson, 24-year-old M. P. from the district of Widnes and a nephew by marriage of Hubert D. Parson, president of the F. W. Woolworth Co.

Since his arrival here with his wife, the former Meysie Gasque of Chicago, who is a niece of the Parsons, the baby member of Parliament has been busy interviewing American business magnates with a view to inducing them to establish branch factories in England.

He paused, between a series of interviews, at the Fifth ave. residence of the Parsons long enough to say a few poignant things about the position of youth in politics.

Robinson declared:

"It is coming to be recognized that youth is both prepared and entitled to take the sceptre of power in the affairs of the world.

"We have a sprinkling of young men in the House of Commons. You in this country likewise have a few younger men in public office. Here and there throughout the world youth is taking a more dominant part in matters of state.

"But the movement has really only begun. More and more places in the governments of the world are going to be filled by younger men."

The youthful member of Parliament spoke with a brisk British accent as he pursued his theme.

He continued:

"There is nothing more stupid than to consider that a man of 60 can step out of some business into a political office and do a good job of it."

Young Outlaws to Be Buried in Texas

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 7 (AP)—The bodies of Harry and Jennings Young, killers of six Missouri officers, will be buried privately in Houston, Tex., probably today. Their mother, Mrs. J. D. Young, was told by a daughter in Houston that the wives of the men wanted them buried there.

The plan may prevent Houston officers from collecting the $1000 reward offered by Greene County Court, which stipulated the bodies be brought here for identification.

WHITE SLAVE DENS WORKED IN CIRCUIT

The Boston Evening American presents herewith the second of a series of three articles on the government's investigation into the gigantic white slave ring operating in the East, which already has resulted in more than a score of arrests.

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American)

Washington, Jan. 7—Hundreds of girls in their teens are revolving slowly around a huge roadhouse circuit of vice that embraces the entire East, and are reaping an unholy fortune for a vicious gang of criminals.

Evidence already uncovered by the federal government shows an appallingly efficient business setup behind the traffic.

Everyone makes money except the girls.

SOLD LIKE CATTLE

Hard-faced young Magdalenes are sold like cattle. They are moved from roadhouse to roadhouse on the outskirts of virtually every town of any size in the East.

Getting behind the scenes of this business has been difficult going for Special Assistant Attorney General Neil Burkinshaw, in charge of the inquiry.

The girls are in deathly fear of being "put on the spot" if they "squeal."

Enough has been learned, however, to give an accurate picture of the workings of the sinister ring.

The history of one girl, who was 18 last March, is typical of all the others.

She came from a family in which the father was dead and the mother an invalid. She quarreled constantly with her sister.

LURED INTO TRAP

Then she met the man—the procurer. For four or five months she went around with this man, then she left home and went to live with him.

Several months later, he told her of a "roadhouse" in a New Jersey town where she could make "some easy money" for them both.

Arrangements for her entering the resort were made through a "bookie." Managers of the houses on the circuit advise the "bookie" of the types of girls they desire from time to time, and the "bookie" in turn gets in touch with a procurer.

The higher-ups, through their house managers, collect 50 per cent of each girl's earnings. The girl, however, retains little of the remaining 50 per cent. First, the manager exacts $15 a week for board; second, her "man" will take a lion's share of the remainder.

Returning to the particular girl, she entered her first resort at the age of 17 in October, 1930. Between that month and November, 1931, she served as a "hostess" in 14 different "roadhouses" in the East.

"CLOSED TERRITORY"

The territory in which the ring operates is "closed territory." Any outsider who undertakes to set up an independent establishment is soon visited by the vice ring's strong-arm squad.

"Sure," they will advise the independent operator, "you can run a joint—provided you put in our girls. We get $10 a head when we place them and take 50 per cent of their earnings."

It is into this highly-organized traffic in human souls that the Department of Justice is reaching its long arm. The undercover men of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation, are making steady progress. A score of arrests already have been made, more important ones are in the offing.

Tomorrow's concluding article will reveal the difficulties the government is experiencing in smashing this ring.

'WHOOPEE ERA' COST CHICAGO MILLIONS

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—Padded payrolls, fake expense accounts and shady business deals helped along with many cases of whiskey—those are the methods by which the Chicago sanitary district is alleged to have wasted $5,000,000 in public funds.

Thousands of words of testimony concerning the misspent dollars have been piled up at the trial of Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and seven of his trustees.

Hundreds of witnesses, including 40 who were then members of the State Legislature, have told of being on the payroll and doing little or no work. Some made a trip or two to investigate claims against the district, others planned at the lake level daily and never made reports, some wrote essays and copied names out of telephone books and merely made a monthly visit to the offices to get their checks.

"WHOOPEE ERA"

Crowe was president of the board of trustees during 1927 and 1928, the period dubbed the "whoopee era" because of the many parties given by persons connected with the district.

One of the principal witnesses yesterday was George B. Dietrich, partner in six contracting companies, some of which were reorganized, he said, because the purchasing agent of the district feared competitors were getting jealous.

He did $341,000 worth of business with the district, he said, made profits of from 50 to 100 per cent, set his own prices and never heard complaints about them. Dietrich said he furnished Purchasing Agent Timothy J. Connolly with $4000 worth of whiskey a month and other items, such as theater tickets, costing up to $10,000 a month.

BRIDAL PATH AT CANAL

Connolly, a fugitive for two years, was recently arrested in California and now faces extradition proceedings.

Monday the judges, attorneys and court attaches plan to look over the $3,000,000 bridle path which parallels a sanitary district canal. The prosecution charges it cost several times its worth and that there was no good reason for building it.

Fitzpatrick, Erie Leader, Dies in N.Y.

Gifford to Tell Needs of Jobless

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Walter S. Gifford, head of the President's unemployment relief organization, notified the Senate manufacturers' committee today he would testify tomorrow on legislation calling for direct federal aid of the jobless.

The committee resumed hearings on bills by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Costigan, Democrat, Colorado, for federal aid with Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit as the witness.

Bruening-Hitler Meeting Denied

Berlin, Jan. 7 (AP)—Chancellor Bruening's secretary today denied reports privately issued by German news agencies that the chancellor would receive Adol. Hitler, leader of the National Socialists.

Thanks! the Same to You

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Let's see how happy the Happy New Year was until it collapsed from laughing too much.

Gandhi in jail up to his ears. American consul slugged in Manchuria and a man in Washington, eight thousand miles from the fight, picks up a telephone and hollers:

"You can't intimidate me."

Congress is voting on thousands of relief bills. Governor Roosevelt's message was just another news reel.

The banks, railroads and power companies claim the government shouldn't go into private business. But when things get tough they make the government a member of the firm.

The way to figure how we stand on European loans is to add it all up, divide it by four and forget the answer.

If Raskob is really trying to put Al Smith into the White House then Al has a good damage suit against him.

And even though there is a war in Manchuria the League of Nations is still doing business during alterations.

SACCO WIDOW WED ONE OF DEFENDERS

Ermano Bianchini, the man Mrs. Nicola Sacco secretly married in 1928, was a member of the committee which directed the futile campaign to save her first husband from the electric chair.

This was disclosed today by Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans, society philanthropist who befriended Mrs. Sacco and her children and waged an active fight to prevent the electrocution of the radical slayers. Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

"I have known all along of her marriage, which she intimated she wanted Nick's friends to understand was for the sake of the children," Mrs. Evans said.

Although Mrs. Sacco's second marriage took place 18 months after the electrocution of her first husband, more than eight years had elapsed since she had lived with Sacco as his wife, according to the philanthropist.

Dante, Sacco's 18-year-old son, was gone abroad as secretary to Edward Holton James, after having refused an opportunity to attend Harvard University, she said. His position "may get him into some adventurous scrapes," Mrs. Evans predicts.

"He is going to his father's home town in Italy where live his respectable forbears and the newer generation," she said. "One can imagine the welcome that will be given to the son of one whom they not unnaturally believe was sacrificed to American 'justice.'"

Maine Woman Ends Life by Gas Fumes

Winslow, Me., Jan. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Joseph Denis, 51, committed suicide today in the kitchen of her home. The body was discovered by the woman's husband, a mill worker on the night shift, when he returned home. Four jets of a gas stove had been turned on and the room tightly closed.

The woman had been in ill health for several years.

Germany to Issue Silver Currency

The silver, in two, three and five mark denominations, is being minted at Munich.

RUM BUYERS TO BE LISTED

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 7 (AP)—The government's new liquor bill will be introduced in Parliament January 19.

Among its provisions will be one requiring purchasers of liquor to file applications with the local manager of the distributing company, giving personal information, from which will be compiled a special reference list of buyers.

All persons under 18 will be barred from buying under the bill's provisions, as will all non-commissioned ranks of the Army without the permission of their superiors. Combined purchases, to be split up later, will not be permitted.

The proposal will call for a state monopoly to control the production and importation of all spirits and to be administered by a board of control, all the profits going to the state.

Restaurants and other licensed sellers will not be allowed to profit from liquor sales or to stimulate the inclination to buy.

Reception Guests Celebrate Two Weddings

At a wedding reception for Thomas Butler, son of Postmaster and Mrs. Royer S. Butler of Swampscott, at 138 Reading st., Swampscott, last night, announcement of the secret marriage, a year ago, of another son, Edward Butler, was made.

Thomas Butler was married yesterday at Nashua, N. H., to Miss Lillian Lindahl of Quincy, and the reception was held at the Butler home last night. During the reception Postmaster Butler announced that Edward, who is on his way to Boston aboard the U. S. S. Henderson, was married Jan. 24, 1931, at Portsmouth, N. H., to Miss Frances Hammond, 17, of 24 Mechanics st., Marblehead.

SCHENKEN WILL PLAY TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—The next-to-the-last session in the Culbertson-Lenz contract bridge tournament of 150 rubbers will be played tonight.

Tonight Ely Culbertson will have Howard Schenken as partner, his fifth in the contest.

Tomorrow night, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson will return to the match. Sidney Lenz and Commander Wilfield Liggett are trailing by 14,175 points.

ROOSEVELT TAX PLAN SCORED

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 7 (INS)—Governor Roosevelt and Republican legislative leaders squared off today for a long political battle.

All talk of co-operation ceased the moment Roosevelt finished reading his annual message.

It is possible the governor's program for increasing gas income tax, stock transfer and heavy motor truck taxes will be torn apart by the Republicans.

What they would really like to do is to take Roosevelt's budget when he submits it next week and slash it to such an extent that higher taxes would not be necessary.

If they consent to eliminating some state activities so as to prevent a boost in taxes, Roosevelt would not offer serious objection, his friends believe.

Wire Skylight Ruins Man's 14-Story Suicide Leap

New York, Jan. 7 (US)—Isaac Prince, 36, a butter and egg dealer, poised on the 14th story window ledge of a skyscraper for a moment, then jumped.

He wanted to die, but he hadn't reckoned with Lady Luck. He crashed through a wire mesh skylight into a bookstore—and lived to tell the tale.

Pickets in Bombay Wreck American Woman's Hat

Bombay, Jan. 7 (AP)—Three hundred American tourists who came ashore from a world cruise ship today encountered the "beshavikas," a sort of ladies' auxiliary to the National Congress party, picketing the few stores which are still open for business.

One American woman went in and bought an English-made hat, but when she came out wearing it a group of Nationalist sympathizers tore it from her head.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly revel and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have, Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

SIMPLE RITES AT BURIAL OF ROSENWALD

Chicago, Jan. 7 (US)—Julius Rosenwald, merchant prince and philanthropist, who died quietly in sleep in his home at Ravinia, will be buried today with simple ceremonies.

"I want," he said, "a small and inconspicuous funeral."

Mr. Rosenwald passed 18 of the last 36 hours of his life in sleep. He awakened for about 15 minutes yesterday while his nurse and Dr. Herbert Pollack of New York were in attendance.

FAMILY SUMMONED

After he lapsed into sleep again, Dr. Pollack noted that his pulse was slowing down. He summoned members of the family, who had been awaiting the end for the last week.

Dr. Pollack announced that death had been caused by hardening of the arteries. Contributing causes were heart and kidney complications.

The physician revealed that the capitalist had been given but 18 months to live when he consulted specialists in New York last March. A month later he retired to his Ravinia home, and remained there.

When his condition became grave, his children were summoned. They arrived a week ago today, but Mr. Rosenwald was not told of their presence until Monday.

CONCERNED WITH CHARITIES

Chief in the philanthropist's mind during his last days was the new Rosenwald Children's Association Foundation, incorporated two weeks ago. He discussed plans for this fund as late as Monday with his family.

Mrs. Adelaide Rau Rosenwald, whom he married two years ago, was with him during his entire illness. His children, who hurried to the home when his condition became grave, are Lessing Rosenwald and William Rosenwald of Philadelphia; Mrs. Edith Stern of New Orleans; Mrs. Adele Levy of New York, and Mrs. Alfred K. Stern of Ravinia.

Also surviving him are two sisters, Mrs. Max Adler and Mrs. S. T. Sendrath of Chicago, and Louis Rosenwald, a brother.

apparent interest of a group of tourist sightseers, their subdued manner contrasting sharply with the shouted demands of the marchers led by Communist sympathizers a month ago.

Capitol authorities planned to admit the marchers to the galleries to the limit of capacity.

HOOVER TO GREET PRIEST

While preparations were being made for their reception at the Capitol, White House officials indicated if Father Cox sought an appointment with the President, to lay before him the marchers' unemployment demands, he would be received.

The heavy police guard thrown entirely around the White House grounds during the demonstration of December 7 was entirely lacking.

Some of the marchers tired of waiting for their leaders and started on their way to the Capitol plaza, climbing the long flight of steps at the west entrance to the Capitol grounds.

Clad in lumberjack coats and sweaters, many wandered through the corridors of the Capitol under the resplendent chandeliers.

The great majority, however, had been fed and were in a pleasant mood.

PAGING NAPOLEON

"We ain't Communists, and we ain't looking for trouble," one of them loudly proclaimed, as George I. Ewing, a Pittsburgh grocerman, one of the leaders, arrived.

Ewing said that the plan was to march the men to the Capitol four abreast, although he added that it would take "Napoleon himself to get this bunch into line."

Father Cox went to an early mass but sent word by Ewing he would lead the trek up Capitol Hill.

Father Cox said a count by police disclosed 243 cars and trucks already here and a steady stream of stragglers still coming in.

He estimated there were more than 20,000 persons in the group. The priest spent most of the night going from billet to billet talking with his men and urging them to keep up their spirits.

While they waited to begin the march some of the men began singing to the accompaniment of guitars and harmonicas.

A band from the North Braddock (Pa.) fire department headed the march. One of the members collapsed from the effects of the long trip and was taken to the hospital before the march began.

The band played lively college airs and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The band which led the previous demonstration played "The Internationale" over and over again.

DEATH CLAIMS JUDGE CABOT SUDDENLY

Funeral arrangements for Judge Frederick P. Cabot, of the Juvenile Court, a national authority on child delinquency, who died suddenly at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, will be announced today.

The Judge entered the hospital about four weeks ago for an operation and although apparently up on the road to recovery, died shortly after 7 o'clock last night.

HEADED FOUNDATION

A statement issued by the Boston juvenile court today said:

"The staff of the Boston juvenile court most keenly feel the loss of Judge Cabot.

"Judge Cabot's friendliness and patience were so great that they made the most obstinate and difficult child entertain respect for law and for the authority of parents.

"For a long time there will remain a great emptiness in the Boston juvenile court."

The judge, who was 65, was often consulted by officials of other cities and states and even of foreign countries regarding problems of juvenile delinquency.

He had served in the juvenile court since 1915, when he was appointed to succeed Judge Harvey Baker. He was also made president of the Judge Baker Foundation for research in child welfare.

Judge Cabot was born in Brookline in June, 1868, and was graduated from Harvard in 1890. Three years later he took simultaneously the degrees of M. A. and LL.B. and was admitted to the bar.

SYMPHONY EXECUTIVE

He was president of the trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, an overseer of Harvard College, a trustee of Wentworth Institute, a member of the council of Radcliffe College and treasurer and director of the Fisher Mfg. Co. and the Winthrop Mills Co.

He was unmarried and is survived by four sisters and two brothers: Francis H. Cabot of New York, Stephen P. Cabot of Boston, Mrs. James J. Putnam of Boston, Mrs. John Richardson of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Arthur Lyman of Waltham, and Miss Amy W. Cabot of Boston.

Chicago Girl Weds Yankee in London

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Daily Sketch said today that Marion Cleghorn Dodge of Chicago, and Alexander Edward Ullman, American engineer, were married here January 5.

The marriage, the paper said, took place in St. Mark's Church after the couple came from Paris a fortnight ago to establish the necessary two weeks' residence. The bride telephoned her parents in the United States, it said, and obtained their consent.

Mourners Must Ride With Union Drivers

Chicago, Jan. 7 (INS)—Mourners will ride to funerals in cars furnished by morticians and driven by union chauffeurs, or they won't ride in the funeral cortege.

This action has been decided upon by the Teamsters and Chauffeurs' Union as a means of relieving unemployment. Drivers of private cars are called a nuisance and are blamed for unemployment.

SALE STARTS AT HOUGHTON'S

Coincident with the thousands of congratulatory messages pouring in to Houghton & Dutton's on the department store's 89th anniversary, as many persons are visiting the store to take advantage of the opening of its anniversary sale.

When Samuel S. Houghton, in 1843, opened his little store at 72 Tremont st. he did not dream that it would grow into one of the most famous retail institutions in New England.

Houghton inaugurated the system of marking goods plainly with one price, thus doing away with any bargaining. He also introduced the use of odd numbers in prices, as 19c, 98c and 59c. The custom of employing women to wait on patrons was started by Houghton.

Houghton & Dutton's has always, since its inception, been a large advertiser in newspapers, using more than 400 full pages yearly, and, in more recent years, on the radio. The store now broadcasts directly from station WEEI every morning at 9:10. Houghton's was also the first store to advertise the "Dollar Day" as far back as 1880.

The biggest day in the Anniversary Sale will be Saturday, January 16, when the store will remain open until 6:30 p. m., and telephone orders will be received until 9:30 p. m.

WHERE BRITAIN 'ERRS' IN INDIA

Adoption of a program for increasing self-governance for India, to extend over a period of years, would have made the recent Round Table Conference a success, Purushottam Vishvanath Bapat, professor of Buddhist literature at the University of Bombay, said today.

Prof. Bapat, who is at Harvard University, declared the spirit of "India for the Indians" has spread to the masses from their more cultured fellow-countrymen.

"Nothing tried, nothing gained," Prof. Bapat said, "and since all India is anxious to prove itself capable, it is certainly worth the experiment."

Everywhere—You!

In morn's pink sky-flush I perceive your cheeks.
From blue lake-depths your eyes peer up at me.
The coolth of your soft hands in mountain creeks.
In darkest night your shoe hair I see.

I sense your vibrant form, so firm and slim,
In proud-upspringing saplings, lithe and young.
But silly magpies, babbling on a limb,
Remind me of your horrid, prattling tongue!

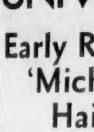
UNIVERSAL COMPANY BUYS FILM MADE IN ENGLAND

Early Release for Milne's 'Michael and Mary;' Haines Ends Tour

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Jan. 7—If you want to be of interest in Hollywood, do the unexpected. Edna Best walked out in the midst of a picture and left the popular Jack Gilbert waiting.

Since that day every time her name is mentioned everyone says, "Oh yes, she is the girl who gave up a movie career because she was in love with her husband and wanted to join him in New York."



Louella O. Parsons

Universal, I have no doubt, reckoned with all the publicity she received at the time, when they bought "Michael and Mary," an English picture, filmed in London.

Of course, there is this to be said. Herbert Marshall, the husband of Edna Best, is a very well known stage actor and what a personality he has on the screen.

"Michael and Mary" is by A. A. Milne and it is credited with being one of the best of the recent British output. It will be released in January.

Billy Haines Back

You just wouldn't know Billy Haines since he came back from his tour around the country. He looks like a high school boy. Billy got rid of the mustache and I am glad and so is everybody else in Hollywood. I went out to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and found that William Haines is to play the leading opposite Madge Evans in "Are You Listening?" Robert Montgomery was originally slated for the part but you know these studios change their minds. Madge Evans, by the way, is one of the prettiest girls in Hollywood. And best of all she photographs that way. "Are You Listening?" is by J. P. McEvoy, and, of course, it is comedy.

Gloria Rumor

If my personal opinion were asked, which it hasn't, I should say Gloria Swanson would be very foolish to do a talkie version of "Rain" or "Sadie Thompson," if you prefer. Gloria was younger when that was made and no matter how clever an actress is the most difficult thing in the world is to repeat a good past performance. Yet straight from Switzerland, where Gloria and her bridegroom have been imbibing the ozone and enjoying the winter sports, comes the rumor that Gloria will return in June and in August will produce the well known Somerset Maugham play.

A Discerning Camel

If you see Ruth Selwyn taking her meals off the mantel the next few days don't be surprised. I happened out at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer just after the camel in Marion Davies' picture, "Polly of the Circus" had taken a nip at Ruthie. She was riding on a horse and the camel, mistaking the tinsel on her short skirt for sugar, started nibbling. Ruth pulled her skirts away and as much to his surprise as hers, he took a good bite out of a portion of her anatomy that is necessary when riding a horse.

Snapshots of Hollywood

MARY BRIAN getting first hand information on prize fighting from JACK DEMPSEY. JACK escorting pretty MARY to the fights where he received a hand such as has seldom been heard even in hero-worshipping Hollywood. Later JACK and MARY joined MERVYN LE ROY and GINGER ROGERS at the Brown Derby. WALLACE BEERY at the Brown Derby being greeted by HERBERT SOMBORN as "brother-in-law." Each was a former SWANSON spouse. GENE FOWLER dropping in at the Derby for a midnight snack. Glimpsed at the Olympic stadium, RICHARD DIX, BARBARA STANWYCK, FRANK FAY, LIONEL ATWILL, CHICK REISNER, HUGH TREVOR, DARRYL ZANUCK, BESS MEREDYTH and MIKE CURTIZ. JOHN CONSIDINE, JR., entertained with an after-theater party at the Biltmore Garden Room. MARSHALL NEILAN, dancing in the Biltmore Room, queried on the book he is supposed to be writing on Hollywood. That's all today.

A luncheon will be held in honor of Georges Carpentier, former French heavyweight boxer, at the Seaglades, Hotel Westminster, tomorrow at noon. Manager Victor J. Morris of Loew's Orpheum, where M. Carpentier presents his musical comedy revue, will be host to prominent sports writers.

Cedric Hardwicke in "The Dreyfus Case" and Dolores Costello in "Expensive Women" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

250-Pound Boy Wire Walker

"Worth his weight in laughs" is the Fanchon and Marco praise of Sonny LaMont, a feature with the Ruth Roland "Cozy Corner" Idea, which will be seen at the Metropolitan tomorrow. While Sonny tips the scales at 250 pounds he is an expert on the bounding wire, dances, tumbles, does acrobatic stunts and is an unusual comedian, and is not yet 22 years of age.

Fifth Concert by Orchestra

The Voice of Broadway

by LOUIS SOBOL

TATTLE AND TATTLE!

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, ex-hottest of blonde Josephine Larkin, quietly merged moniker with the slim Jean Tennyson, X-Vanitieaser, just tha other wk...The Johnny (Bobby Arnst) Weismullers, who only kissed and made up the other day, are pouting again...Rudy Vallee, who used to like us a lot, doesn't any more...Insists we're going out of our way to be maous... Because we insisted he and Fay Webb were chiseling and thataway... Federal agent snoopers have been warned to either get the goods on the places assigned to them or hand in their resignations... Incidentally, Camilla Lanier, who claims she was Johnny Weismuller's first wife, is ready to step to the altar with Richard Hemingway, ex-Brown grid star, when the young gent says the word.

MANY APPLICANTS

What leading cinamogul producer tried to commit suicide two wks. ago, because of his terrific financial losses, and is now under constant surveillance? . . . Kate Smith, the robust chanteuse, has gifted Ted Collins with a solitaire three karats wide, long and deep . . . Bank branches in the midtown sections were housewives keep their accounts now are charging from $5 to $10 monthly if your account goes under $500 . . .

MAKING PLENTY

The large waterfront plot owned by the French government on the East River will be bgt by New York city shortly for close to $2,000,000 . . . Speaking of newspapermen, Johnny O'Connor, the retired colyumist, is grossing more than a flock of us scribblers put together simply by arranging booking for Fred Waring and Joe Cook (Waring at $6500 per wk. Cook at $5500) . . . Despite the gloomy predictions of this dept., the speaks and the auto clubs did turn away big New Year's Eve, but the income fell considerably under last year's . . . Not the going, however . . . Jack Potter and Marc Lachmann will travel West to handle the personal appearances of Maurice Chevalier under the Dillingham aegis.

THEY'RE DRIFTING

The Burney Hersheys are drifting . . . Louis K. Harrison, star in "Girl of Pekin" in 1889, ailing . . . This is the play Trixie Friganza made her debut in as a chorus girl . . . Herman Amron, mgr. of the Hollywood Restaurant, and Bernice Roberts, the Follieswest, are athrob . . . Did you get a load of Jimmy Durante's goody ad in the current Variety? . . . Another shakeup in that swanky jab, with most of the old advertising dropped in let out . . . Oh, well, as Vinciolopes puts it, the darkest hour is just before the pawn.

PRISONERS PRAISE RADIO

Charlestown Men Appreciate Sets

By N. P. T.

As it has so many times been said, radio artists hardly realize how far-reaching their voices and musical efforts carry. Broadcasting is heard not only in the distant corners of city and country, but also in remote spheres of segregated social circles. Few points of reception could ever be more grateful for all that radio offers than the cell blocks harboring men behind gray walls at Charlestown.

INFLUENCE FOR GOOD

One needs but to read a touching tribute wherein an unknown prisoner at the penitentiary voices sentiment on behalf of his fellows. He expresses gratitude to another unknown, "the gracious lady who generously, thoughtfully and unostentatiously contributed to the inauguration of a new era in the lives of men sentenced to dwell within walls of this prison." Such is but one passage from an eloquent, well written piece found featured in the current "Mentor" publication, organ of the "Silent City."

* * *

Talking with Warden Hogsett, one is further informed that no phase of diversion entered into by his charges is more enthusiastically patronized than nightly bits taken out of the air. Reception is scheduled between 8 and 10 p. m. each evening. Though regulations call for bed at 11, ear phones afford those who chooses to listen longer, an opportunity for enjoyment conveyed by even later offerings.

* * *

This unsung writer proceeds to point out his belief that "her gift will assist materially in building up a good character which, with moral strength, will make its possessor a better man, a loyal lawabiding citizen, a loving son, father and husband whose family shall ever honor him." Discount these thoughts, those who will.

* * *

Because of broadcasting then an age-old passage penned by Byron, "Forgetting the World, by the World Forgot," no longer holds thoroughly true. That is good.

* * *

Lloyd C. Thomas, heard last night during the WBZ far north feature is a visiting Westinghouse executive from Pittsburgh. He is also a pioneer in radio transmission to distant areas. Mr. Thomas feels this WBZ idea to furnish periods of entertainment for those far from firesides, is one of the important service functions of well ordered broadcasting stations.

WALTER READS AND WRITES

Apologies, if necessary, to Walter (great guy) Winchell, who writes in regarding a quip here last Nov. 27 having he might not go through December on the cigarette program. At that time, considerable discussion whirled about Walter's finely shaped head. Hair wave, tobacco and newspaper makers were demanding exclusive service of the efficiently secretaried scribe. Walter finally came out on top as usual. What's more, his present lucky (no pun) air sponsors paid well to keep him from doing duty elsewhere. Incidentally, this loquacious lad is the most talked of personality now on the network, all because he says something every time he speaks. Is that "Okay Walter?"

On the Air

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER

Guy Lombardo's entire band fits into one elevator.

At NBC's N. Y. headquarters reception of the CBS mainstay, WABC, comes through better than its own WEAF and WJZ.

If all the people who've been auditioned really got answers to the "we'll let you know by mail," postmen would have to use trucks for delivery.

Clark Gable, Marie Dressler and Paul Whiteman head an NBC "special" Sat. eve. at 9 . . . Lowell Thomas' air periods have been scissored. His Sat. p'gram is first to go . . . "How to End the Depression" in 15 minutes is the topic of Loring Shuler, magazine editor, WEEI at noon tomorrow . . . Jack Benuvis' real tag is Jean Beauvais, Jr.

Arthur Mariell's Sun. WBZ p'gram will have as guest stars Cab Calloway, Ruth Roland and Betty Cole. Arthur, incidentally, recently asked N. F. T. to write his life story but I halted operations . . . While Hodeyo Calloway is theater-touring for 11 wks, his NBC p'grams will be filled by the Blue Rhythm Band . . . Sec'y of Agriculture Hyde won't tell what he's talking about WBZ at 1:30 tomorrow.

Georges Carpentier will be aired this wk. . . . Member yesty's scoopes hare about Phil Cook opening a show? Well, he, Turtlesoup'r gis and Budd, Lowell Thomas and Singin' Sam will be in the show to open the 18th. And if NBC and CBS can get together the opening will be b'dcast . . . A private club's to be installed in the penthouse of CBS's building . . . Vaughn De Leath will do a theater tour. At CBS they say Vaughn's arrival is the reason for Harriet Lee's departure . . . Bert Lowe isn't being aired. His hotel job has been filled by Ross Gorman . . . WEEI has auditions for records—by J. V. (publicity) MacDonald's own admission . . . Ben Alley's middle name is Debfor . . . Joe Mollomo, ivory ticklar for the Tipipers, spent his New Yrs. eve in a cell. But it was a practical joke sponsored by an officer friend . . .

SHOCK AT MOVIES RECORDED AND REGRETTED

By GILBERT SELDES

I HAVE AT LAST BEEN shocked at the movies. Not, you will understand, by the movies. I do not believe that the movies themselves have a voltage sufficient to shock; with a few exceptions, what takes place there is so far removed from actual human activity that the faint adulteries and the astounding sins, and even the queer emotions of the movies are not shocking. To be shocking a thing has to have some connection with reality; and it was in connection with something as real as life and death that I got my shock the other day at a picture show.

Harsh Words

The event was one of those short subjects which quite often, if they are well selected, are the best part of an entertainment. At a certain moment this particular one showed the spot at which Alexander Hamilton was killed in his duel with Aaron Burr; within an iron paling stood a bust, weatherbeaten but sadly dignified, of the greatest Secretary of the Treasury "before Andrew Mellon." The voice from the screen alluded briefly to the duel, said that Hamilton fell, and then added these words: "He could dish it out, but he couldn't take it."

All Wrong

My political tendency used to be Jeffersonian and I was brought up with a romantic admiration for Aaron Burr; I have no emotional response to the name of Hamilton. But it seemed to me that the gangster's phrase was definitely shocking and not with the thrill of an unexpected electric current; it was as shocking as a blow between the eyes. The very event to which it was applied was adequate proof that the statement was inappropriate; obviously, Hamilton could not dish it out and could and did take it like a man. But accuracy is not so important here. The important thing is the intention, successfully carried out, to lower everything to the meanest possible level, as if to say, we have no dignity now and we will be damned if we'll let anyone enjoy dignity even in the past.

New Commandments

It is amusing to find a distinguished British scholar doing exactly what this movie did. Dr. Cecil Cadoux has made a new version of the Ten Commandments, among which occur the following:

"You are not to use the name of your God, Yahweh, flippantly. Yahweh will not let those who use his name flippantly get off."

"Mind you obey all instructions I am giving you to the letter. Don't erect any stone pillars to other gods. Yahweh doesn't like it. And don't offer him as a sacrifice any animal that's got anything wrong with it. He loathes that sort of thing."

In the Gutter

In the comment on the recent American Bible the argument was naturally influenced by memories of the magnificent English of the authorized version; the American revision, according to some people, lacked poetic beauty and it naturally could not have the emotional overtones of the text which we had known since childhood; but it is not vulgar. The quotations above indicate a deliberate purpose to bring the Bible down to the level of the man in the gutter. It is no argument to say that the language of the original was as common as "Yahweh doesn't like it," or "He loathes that sort of thing." We do not know what dignities words had in those times, and it is a little unsafe to assume that because we are a cheap lot, our ancestors were cheap, too.

A Great Dancer

The first decoration bestowed by the new Spanish Republic went not to a politician or a writer or a general or a painter, but to a dancer, the superb interpreter of Spanish folk dance who is known as La Argentina, and who is now making her fourth tour of this country. In the days of quick reputations La Argentina is almost fabulous because she danced (at the age of nine) at the coronation of King Alfonso; she had one of those great European reputations which are so often the prelude to the appearance of a spoiled artist; and she was not spoiled.

* * *

Seeing her dance is one of the great common pleasures. You may get more out of her dancing if you know something about the old ballet and Spanish folk music, and you will appreciate her more if you know how dull and monotonous most Spanish dancing is; but you do not have to fortify yourself with philosophies of life and profound religious beliefs and books on aesthetics in order to enjoy the enchanting delicacy of her movements or to experience the tremendous excitement she generates

Folk Dancing Made Easy

Argentina is, actually, one of the most highly trained and expert classical dancers, but she is devoting herself largely to such dances as you can imagine seeing on a country road in Spain during some holiday; dances which wiry old men do to show that they recall the days when they were courting, or old women do to prove themselves still full of grace. For a dancer who has spent almost all her life in opera houses, in contact with painters and musicians, Argentina retains an amazing simplicity. Her flashwife is not a flashwife, but is full of understanding of the humor and the slyness of a flashwife. She is not a great actress except in the sense that every great dancer has to be one; she expresses herself much more in movement than in mimicry.

* * *

She is most famous for her use of the castanets, an instrument which every Spanish dancer uses and almost always with the effect of a dull accompaniment to the music, so that you think that without them the dance would hardly be worth seeing. Argentina has added a new instrument to the music of her dance; her castanets have infinite variety and when she puts them away the snap of her fingers is almost as good. And when she comes to dance the Bolero, in which all her classic training and all her knowledge of Spanish folk tunes are combined, she creates a great event which puts dancing where it belongs as one of the few great fundamental arts of mankind.

FARMERS ASK FOR SUBSIDY

Madison, Wis., Jan. 6 (AP)—From the alfalfa fields of Wisconsin, dirt farmer legislators have brought to the State capital what is perhaps the most direct plan of farm relief ever to gain the serious attention of an American Legislature.

"Pay us," say the farmers, "out of the State treasury."

Weary with unfilled relief promises, tired of what they call will o' the wisp plans, which never get farther than resounding arguments in Congress, the Wisconsin of the State have asked for a subsidy.

At the present there is $24,500,000 in the general fund of the State. The farmer now figures it is about time for the "redistribution of wealth" which Governor Philip F. La Follette is talking about.

The subsidy plan rode through the Legislature on the coattails of a bill to provide an eight-hour day for Wisconsin laborers.

Flames Sweep Stores in London, Ontario

London, Ontario, Jan. 7 (AP)—One of the worst fires London has experienced in 25 years swept stores in Dundas st. today.

The flames apparently broke out in one of the oldest stores, T. F. Kingsmill Co., Ltd., and spread to the London Crockery and Mara Dry Goods stores.

Would you believe it? This snowmobile, rigged for all kinds of hard travel, in snow, ice and blizzards, went to Moose Factory, Ont., within 16 miles of the Arctic Circle. # ARCTIC AUTO IS ON DISPLAY

The six-wheel "snowmobile," with ski-runners, that went to Moose Factory, Ont., within 16 degrees of the Arctic Circle, attracted considerable attention today when displayed in a vacant lot off Park sq.

The machine is owned by Standard Oil Co., and was taken to the Canadian outpost town by Ransom B. Nichols, of Chestnut ave., Brookline.

An extra set of wheels are situated in the middle of the car and connect with the rear wheels with caterpillar traction chain. The tires are specially constructed with cog-like raised surfaces which grip the traction chains. When the machine operates over snow-covered surfaces, the front wheels are cradled in ski-runners that can be quickly attached.

WOMEN RALLY FOR EQUALITY

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Ardent feminists rallied at the Capitol today around a proposal to complete sex equality in citizenship.

The final section of a bill, by Rep. Cable of Ohio, was their pride and joy. It said:

"Hereafter there shall be no distinction based on sex in the law and practice relating to nationality, citizenship and naturalization—any right now enjoyed by one sex shall be equally available to the other under like circumstances."

The feminists have been fighting many years to get the lawmakers to say that.

Miss Maud Younger, veteran legislative chairman of the National Woman's party, led the group called before today's House immigration committee hearing on the bill. She was assisted by Mrs. Hurnita Shelton Matthews, attorney of the organization.

EDUCATION ON A SPLURGE PROVES ITS WEAKNESS IN CRISIS' PINCH

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

DEAN VIRGINIA GILDERSLEEVE of Barnard College—who speaks with authority equal to that of the president of any of our larger women's colleges—has seen the light. As head of one of the schools of Columbia, the great department store university that Dr. Abraham Flexner dealt with so unsparingly in his book on Universities, she has turned her back on the practical and vocational ideal to which Columbia has become increasingly devoted and made her stand for a return to the old ideal of a liberal education.

It must take courage for a Columbia administrator to say that the liberal arts education is needed more emphatically than technical training courses.

"It is a fact that our mechanical and scientific faculty has far outrun our intellectual ability," she said. "We do not seem to know what to do with the wonderful mechanical world we have built up. There is a great need for intellect, besides mechanical or scientific genius, for men and women with a truer vision of the kind of world we should become."

"Education" on Mad Splurge

It must take courage, because Columbia has long been the chief exponent in America of the big city university, with a multitude of departments, many of them almost purely vocational, plus a vast number of extension courses in every kind of subject, including many that in Dr. Flexner's opinion have no possible relation to higher education, that make no real demand on the intellect, and prostitute the very idea of the baccalaureate or associate degree in the arts and sciences. Columbia, also, is the chief exponent, at her Teachers' College, of a kind of education for teachers which is much more like dog training than education in any genuine sense of the word.

But in the great inflation era of the past decade Dean Gildersleeve's words would have fallen on deaf ears. Practical education seemed justified in its fruits. The graduates of our schools and colleges of business, schools that gave the B. S. for stenography and bookkeeping and filing, helped to make a business world of experiment, expansion and inflation, where callow young men were shouldering age and experience into the background, where the slogan was extravagance, speed, over-production, forced consumption, high wages, high prices, where, in a word, the sky was the limit. Everything was jake.

And the products of the graduate schools of business administration helped to make a world where everyone was at least a vice-president, and where the necessary hopping from merger to merger kept their wits nimble and their pulses pleasantly brisk. It was a great age. No one would have been fool enough to consider that the old, slow, quiet, liberal arts education was better than this quick and easy training in the tricks of go-getter business, ballyhoo advertising and stock gambling.

Master Salesmen, None to Buy

But now Dean Gildersleeve's remarks should fall upon more attentive ears. Many of those ears are quite at leisure now to listen to the voice of experience and tradition. The younger men have made a mess of it. Because of them we share the world business crisis far less well-heeled than we might have been. Most of the vice-presidents have been reduced to the ranks. Thousands of young men with a high school mind and a so-called college education have been turned out into the world with no resource save a naive faith in the tricks of "selling," which they have been taught to believe is the be-all and the end-all of life.

We see our business men and publicists and politicians running in circles improvising panaceas, most of them obviously without that intellectual training which would enable them to get down to first principles and think their way out from there. The "intellect" which Dean Gildersleeve sees lacking in the thought of our generation is something entirely different from mechanical ability, from the trick of manipulating facts and statistics in business, even from the kind of talent necessary for a respectable career in applied science. It is the product of a long, slow, habitual training in the disciplinary subjects for the sake of the training: mathematics, the languages, logic, philosophy, pure science—the old curriculum. Incidentally, probably a little theology wouldn't hurt at all.

This, as Matthew Arnold put it, is the only training that can teach us how to manage knowledge. Knowledge, factual knowledge of mechanics, business, science, is a tool only. Nothing in that training teaches you how to use it—or whether to use it. A hammer can be used to build a house or to crush a skull. Chemistry can be used to benefit human life or to destroy it. Business knowledge can be used to enrich civilization permanently or to impoverish it—as our recent business knowledge has impoverished it.

Culture Off Bargain Counter Now

How this knowledge is used will depend on what might be called "quality education" rather than "quantity education." If factual education is the muscle that energizes the tool, a liberal education is the brain and art heart that direct the muscle. And that education is exactly what our professional schools and our department store universities have neglected in their efforts to attract hordes of people with high school minds to a cheap and easy education that inevitably breaks down when things go wrong. Hence the determined effort on the part of the American people to blame the government, to blame the English and the French and the Germans, to blame the bankers, to blame everybody but themselves and the business and political ideals which they have wrought in their own image.

A cheap, jerry-built education, its foundation resting insecurely on the slipping foundation of democratic utility, has inevitably resulted in the jerry-built toppling social structure we find ourselves living in.

The time has come when we must drop the idea that "culture" is an ornament, something to be played with by women's clubs on Wednesday afternoons, and recognize that culture is the basis of safe living. As Mussolini said recently: Culture is an instrument in the fight for life.

The men who created our nation were men with a simple but thorough-going liberal education of the old-fashioned sort. The men who made the Civil War have gone far toward wrecking it are men with a purely greedy and practical education, what Carlyle called a "stomach philosophy."

And now that stomachs are empty, there is nothing in the heart or the brain to fortify one in distress, to endure reverses, to accept one's fortune with equanimity, or to steer soberly and intelligently a new and rational course.

MODIFICATION LEAGUE HALTS LOCAL DRIVE

Unit of St. Louis Organization Suspends After Warner Confers With Leaders

Massachusetts operations of the National Modification League of St Louis—the home of the brewers—were suspended today following a conference between Atty.-Gen. Joseph I. Warner and Roger Pigeon of Wollaston, Massachusetts manager of the league.

Pigeon himself volunteered to suspend locally until the league could be investigated, and he volunteered to try and get additional information about the organization from the home office in St. Louis, for perusal by the attorney general

"He did not ask me to suspend, but I volunteered it." Pigeon said after the hour and a half conference with Warner. "Perhaps he would have asked me to suspend."

The attorney-general corroborated this statement

The league, established to work for repeal of the Jones Law and modification of the Volstead Act, plans local organizations all over the country. The start of its activities here is now subject of scrutiny by the Commonwealth.

11 GIRLS WORKING

Before going into session with the attorney-general, Pigeon admitted to reporters that he has 11 girls out canvassing for names to strengthen the organization and for finances to support the league's fight against prohibition

He said the girls are paid 25 per cent of what they collect, and he receives 10 per cent of the balance from St. Louis, after he forwards the money from the Boston office in Newbury st., Back Bay.

"I don't know what this investigation is all about," he said, "There is nothing wrong with our organization, so far as I know. If I am breaking any law, of course I will stop. It doesn't mean a great deal to me, because there isn't much money in it anyway, so far.

ANSWERED AD

"I am personally interested in the movement because I am against the Eighteenth Amendment and I think that it is an infringement of our constitutional rights."

Pigeon said he got his job as Massachusetts manager by answering a newspaper advertisement of the National Modification League

HAD SAT IN ON ALL-NIGHT CARD SESSION

Earling, Son of Millionaire Business Man, Taken to Hospital With Injured Leg

Because he wanted a "little air" after sitting in at an all-night card party, George P. Earling, 19-year-old Harvard junior and former Hotchkiss student, fell from a second-story window in Hotel Buckminster early today and suffered a cut leg.

Earling and some friends, who wanted an all night bridge session without conversation interruption, hired a suite in the Buckminster and settled down to play

The suite was on the second floor, and Earling feeling "stuffy," he says, was drawn by the soothing sound of the rain on the roof of an adjacent one-story building.

He reached the roof, by way of a window, slipped on the wet surface, and fell. In the fall one of his legs caught on a cornice of the adjoining building

He was taken into the hotel by his companion and then to the City Hospital

Earling is the son of a prominent Milwaukee business man. He roomed in the Adams House, a Harvard dormitory.

Out on Bail

Murray Walker, Federal Street broker, is free on bail of $5000 awaiting a hearing on Jan. 27. He is charged with larceny of $14,000 from Miss Maude Chambers, of 82 Hancock st., Cambridge.

MATE TO SUE WAR BRIDE

Although Mrs. Rachel M. Mason of Magazine st., Cambridge, a French war bride has decided not to divorce her husband, Charles H. Mason of Worcester, Mason himself will file suit for divorce from her Harold J. Nugent, his attorney announced today

Nugent said Mason would charge the war bride with desertion

Mrs. Mason, in Worcester Probate Court, yesterday changed her mind about her divorce action charging cruel treatment and neglect to support and Judge Atwood dismissed the case

"My husband is infatuated with another woman and if I secure a divorce he will probably marry the other woman and I don't want this to happen because I still love him," she said.

Mrs. Mason became the bride of Mason in Havre, France, Aug. 17, 1921. The couple have lived together in New York and Worcester

SUSPECT GIVES ADDRESS HERE

Francis A. Giannini, giving a Beacon st. address and declaring himself to be a writer and a lecturer on astronomy, was held by New York police today, wandering on an upper floor of the Hotel Plaza, trying doors and peering into rooms

When arrested by a house detective, Giannini apparently was intoxicated, the detective said. Giannini told police he was looking for a friend and believed he was in the St. Moritz Hotel, which is on West 50th st., near the Plaza.

No one by the name he gave as that of the name of the friend was registered at either hotel, however

The Boston address given by Giannini is headquarters of the New England Unitarian Society, and officials of the society said today Giannini first visited there two years ago seeking lecture dates

Again last fall, they said, he returned and sought vainly to have advertising of the society cash a check, pleading that it was after banking hours and that they were out of the place, and settled at Mrs. Manchester's

Lilly Lou could not see, even yet, why Mrs. Manchester should want to take them in, for twenty dollars a month

QUIGLEY WANTS FIREMEN CUT

Mayor Quigley of Chelsea, who last night asked the police to take a voluntary 10 per cent reduction in salary, today asked the 350 firemen of the city to do the same

It was revealed at the time that he had requested the school committee to declare a two-year moratorium on luncheon in teachers' salaries. The committee has taken that matter under advisement

The mayor made his request of the firemen when they assembled in the Central fire station. They will vote on the proposition, as will the police. The mayor and aldermen have no power to lower their salaries, which were increased by vote of the citizens at a referendum

Mayor Quigley seeks to lower the tax rate from $41.20 to $37.

Ad Expert Advises Better "Thinking"

"Our failure to think seriously, intelligently or logically is the chief obstacle that stands in the way of individual business recovery as we enter 1932," said L. M. Barton, managing director of Major Market Newspapers, the Advertising Forum of the Advertising Club, last night

"Dr. Julius Klein, is a trifle more modest but none of the less emphatic in the language he uses," continued Mr. Barton when he says "that American business men, conservatively speaking lose approximately $12,000,000,000 every year because of their lack of knowledge of markets and marketing."

STATE PROBES SHARON FIRE

The state fire marshal's office is investigating the fire which swept Sunset Inn at Sharon last Thursday morning, it became known today

According to Fire Marshal James M. Hurley a man has given his office "certain information" relative to the fire indicating it may have been of incendiary origin

"While the information is somewhat vague," said the fire marshal, "I am having the circumstances checked."

The blaze drove out 42 guests

Love and Coal Mixed Up in Romance 15 Days Old

A romance of love and coal tone Everett and Malden litigants into municipal court today

The coal—$47 worth—was delivered to the family of Gino Di Donato of Oakland st., Malden, according to Michael Cafasso, Everett coal dealer

When he sought payment he testified that the delivery was understood as a gift because of his 15-day romance with Gene vieva Di Donato, who recently came here from New York

Cafasso parried that he furnished train fare for the girl which was "gift enough."

WILD AUTOIST GETS JAIL

Anthony Morelli, 24, of Bow st., Medford captured yesterday after an automobile chase through Somerville, Medford and Cambridge, was fined $25 today in Malden on a charge of refusing to stop for an officer, and was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction for dangerous driving

Morelli, who was on parole on an old automobile charge, appealed and was held in $50 for Superior Court.

Splendid New Home Amazes Lily Lou

MAXINE WALKED in at that point and tweaked her nose, and Mrs. Grampas screamed, and the other roomers came running . . .

Thank goodness that was all over, and they were out of the place, and settled at Mrs. Manchester's

Lilly Lou could not see, even yet, why Mrs. Manchester should want to take them in, for twenty dollars a month

TOO MEAN

"Why twenty a month? That doesn't begin to pay for what we actually cost her for food and linen—"

"Oh, she doesn't need the money," Maxine said airily. "She could just as well take us for nothing, but like all her kind she's too mean for that. Wants to make us suffer a little. Oh, well! We couldn't do better for twenty bucks!"

Maxine made herself at home from the first, but Lily Lou suffered agonies of shyness, afraid to take a bath lest Mrs. Manchester want the bathroom while she had it, afraid to serve herself enough food to keep a canary alive, from the dishes the maid offered at her left side. She was even afraid to practice at first. But Mrs. Manchester was out much of the time, and gradually Lily Lou began to feel at home, to accept small services from Sadie, the willing maid and to become really fond of the three huge orange cats who wandered majestically through the rooms

Now that she had a place to live and a job she'd have to do something about her voice . . .

"I'll try to get an audition with Tolari Saturday or Sunday," she thought, feeling sick in anticipation. Suppose he said she had no voice? Better to know it at once, in that case . . .

"Lily Lou Lansing, are you a coward?" she asked herself, staring at her rather greenish image in Mrs. Manchester's excellent mirror. "Are you had deliberately putting it off?"

HER AUDITION

But no . . . it was because she didn't really feel well. That was it. If she felt better it would be different. If she had gone the very moment she came to New York it would have been so much easier. Now, what with her hours at the dancing class, and having to be home on time for meals and hearing all this talk about things she had never heard of "Net one girl in 60 succeeds in voice," Wanda Pillsbury said. "Now if I could play the way you can I wouldn't even try to sing—"

In the studio building where Wanda had her classes there were many teachers of voice She saw them coming in and out of their doors. Heard snatches of song, catch phrases—"She forced that white tone!" "Voice too far back!" "Never properly placed—"

Nobody had ever placed her voice. Should it have been placed? Prices were frightening, too. Five dollars for half an hour was just nothing. Dwight Irvin, the coach, whose studio was on the same floor with Wanda's, got $25. Very likely Tolari would charge as much. And then there was this business of getting an audition. Some of the teachers had connections. Wanda Pillsbury said they nearly all made you pay for at least ten lessons in advance.

THREE SONGS

"I'm going to have an audition with Tolari on Sunday," wrote the family, glad that she had something definite to write at last. "I'm going to take three songs, 'La Heur Bleu,' 'Gentle Lark,' and 'The Bell Song from Lakme' and the 'Mad Scene from Lucia'—"

Her choice seemed important—impressive, as she wrote, but on her way to the bench to sing for the great Tolari, it seemed smarty and silly. He'd think she had a nerve, to try the 'Mad Scene' . . . better leave that out . . .

She grew suddenly confused and dizzy, wandering through the unfamiliar streets, hating to ask afraid she'd got off at the wrong place . . .

In front of a dusty brick house set back a few feet from the street, with a tiny plot of lumpy

RECONSTRUCTION YEAR SEEN AS UNDER WAY

By B. C. FORBES

THIS SHOULD prove reconstruction year—1931 was deflation year.

No great progress need be expected immediately. The financial world contends that some readjustments remain to be made, including readjustment of building wages, in addition to railway wages. Considerable 1931 wreckage must be cleaned up. Assets locked up in closed banks will have to be marketed. The new year, it has already been proved, will not be without scattered bank failures. Necessitous liquidation of collateral held against weakened loans may continue a factor for some little time.

The change of the calendar has not changed fear into confidence.

Congressional Relief Foreseen

The tearing-down process, however, has been thorough-going in most directions. Constructive measures now are in order.

Congress is expected to prove helpful. High hopes are entertained of the proposed billion-dollar reconstruction corporation, designed to extend credit almost wherever needed. The National Credit Corporation is beginning to function in earnest for the succor of solvent but hard-pressed banks. The federal reserve law promises to be broadened, to permit of wider use of its credit-granting facilities. "Inflation," the bugbear of armchair theorists safe in their jobs and not burdened with responsibility for filling pay envelopes, is little feared.

There is a stronger disposition than customary to look for reasonable tax legislation. Even substantial cutting down of federal expenditures is regarded as possible, perhaps probable.

Europe Has Shot Its Bolt

Europe, it is felt, cannot this year duplicate its 1931 series of major disturbances. Britain's national government has restored calm. That some practical solution of Germany's grave financial troubles will be found is not seriously doubted here.

Instead of the raising of additional tariff barriers throughout the world, the drift now is toward conciliation, towards amicable bargaining, towards negotiated reciprocity.

Price Levels at Bottom

The year starts on a very low commodity price level. Almost every raw material is unusually cheap. Inventories of finished goods are light. In most lines—though not all—flagrant overproduction has been checked. Relatively little new capital has gone into additional plants in the last two years. Security values have been drastically deflated. Economies have been put into operation almost everywhere. Labor is probably more efficient today than ever before.

All this has contributed to laying foundations for erecting a new prosperity structure.

Recovery Must Be Slow

The prevailing mental state does not suggest that general recovery will be witnessed forthwith. Apprehension is still widespread. The bulk of hoarded money has not yet been redeposited in banks. Payments to depositors in closed banks are being made lamentably slowly. Spending proceeds very gingerly. Savings banks are doing distinctly better than retail stores.

Upturn Months Away

It may take several months for constructive forces now being set in motion to change appreciably the economic picture. After further ups and downs, with perhaps more downs than ups, the tide will, however, inevitably turn—just as it always has in the past.

The writer cannot subscribe to the pessimists' theory that existing conditions must be regarded and accepted as normal. It is inconceivable, for example, that the best American corporate bonds and stocks should permanently sell at current levels, that commerce will not again advance, that new financing will not by and by expand, that existing unemployment will not greatly diminish, that nothing better than such experiences as have been suffered during 1931 will be the perpetual lot of the people of this young, vigorous, aggressive, progressive, enterprising, infinitely rich and resourceful nation.

CAN INDUSTRY MOST STABLE

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—Final results for 1931 indicate that the can manufacturing companies constitute one of the most stable of American Industries, according to O. C. Huffman, president of the Continental Can Co.

Looking to the new year, Mr. Huffman points out that the demand for packers' cans will be influenced by a number of factors, among which crop conditions will be highly important. The pack of the principal crops was short in 1931, and the carryover of canned foods into 1932 correspondingly reduced.

"The consumption of canned foods per capita in this country has been increasing for a number of years," said Mr. Huffman. "New products are constantly being added to the list of foods packed in cans.

"The experience of the past is that depression does not greatly reduce the consumption of foods, and canning is still the most economical method of preserving and distributing many basic foodstuffs. This company looks to the future with confidence."

GEN. AMERICAN REPORT GIVEN

General American Investors Co., Inc., reports as of Dec. 31, 1931, net resources, before deducting the outstanding debentures, of $16,751,487, taking securities owned at market value. The company had in cash, and short-term U. S. government or municipal obligations, $8,906,326, or about 53 per cent of net assets.

During the year the company purchased and retired $200,000 face value of its 5 per cent debentures and $600,000 par value of preferred stock.

Income from dividends on stocks, interest on bonds, interest on deposits and syndicate profits was $1,020,060. Net income after the payment of all expenses and interest on the debentures was $533,056 which covered, with a small margin, dividends on preferred stock.

Net assets as of December 31, were equivalent to $2500 per debenture, and the balance, after providing for debentures, was equivalent to $119.66 per share of outstanding preferred stock, or $1.27 per share of common stock.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the reversal of opinion in informed circles, referred to here yesterday, does not promise a runaway bull market. Rather it means that some successful operators feel an irregular upward movement has gotten under way. Realizing there are still many obstacles to be hurdled, they will, for the present, limit their activities to a few equities that strike them as attractive around current levels.

Tentative Favorites

For the present this venture on the long side must be limited to shares classed as tentative bull market favorites. Nash, Chrysler and Steel, previously given her, are on the list. Stops protect all three Nash at 16¼, Chrysler at 12 and Steel at 34. Added to these are Johns-Manville and Westinghouse. Neither of the latter carry the seasonal upset of the former suggestions. But this is compensated for by the unwieldy size discounts both are said to have. Also they respond well to speculative influences. Commitments are not advised on a short pulse and should be protected by relatively close stops

Besides the above, outright holders have now accumulated Boston & Maine at 10 or under, New Haven under 18 and Monsanto Chemical around 21. All represent New England enterprises which either have a notable niche in possible mergers or a promising place in future industrial development

Economic Blues

The recent gathering of economists at Washington resulted in spreading gloom among many who, naturally enough, consider their utterances as the last word. Unfortunately the percentage of correctness among the rank and file of economists is no higher than that of ordinary mortals. In 1930, a majority of this same group indicated that prosperity would be with us by the middle of the year. In 1931 the consensus of opinion was that a definite turn would be made by the end of the year. The errors in previous forecasts are obvious and it is expected their 1932 predictions will again prove to be wide of the mark.

Waldorf, while it may lack speculative sponsors for a time, certainly presents an attractive investment picture. Trading better than 10 per cent and selling for less than six times earnings, it is being bought by many who welcome the chance to own a security that has not earned under $2 a share since 1921.

Gossip About Oils

The "Street" is hearing advance rumblings of good news to come on the oils . . . This group, a little disappointed to all who touched it last year, will have to show something before it will receive much attention . . . This, of course, does not deny the bargains existing in the low price bracket, substantiating their speculative possibilities . . . If the long range outlook for the oils is considered by itself, then shares such as Continental, Sinclair, Petroleum Corp., Phillips, Texas Corp., and Socony Vacuum are advised . . . If the "good news" concerns a tariff, it will likely receive a cool reception from many oil men . . .

Incidentally, one of the unfavorable features of bullish oil gossip is the belief a large interest sold stock in 1931 for reasons other than to establish tax losses

$455,000,000 FOR EXPANSION

New York, Jan. 7—The electric light and power companies in the United States will expend $455,000,000 for expansion and improvement in 1932, according to analysis of an annual survey just completed and announced by Electrical World. The budget is 28 per cent less than actual expenditures for 1931, a reduction due in large part to a drop in generating projects

More than half of the budget total will go for extensions and improvements of local services. Distribution and sub-station expenditures will amount to $213,000,000. This sum accounts for 64 per cent of the total budget and is $55,000,000 less than expenditures for distribution and sub-stations in 1931. Transmission construction projects will require $55,000,000 this year, as compared with $81,000,000 last year.

The total revenue of the electric light and power industry for 1931 was $2,137,000,000. Of this income $1,977,000,000 came from ultimate consumers of electricity. The income total is 0.7 per cent below the 1930 figure, but is 3.5 per cent above 1929. Of the total income, $585,000,000 came from domestic customers and $568,000,000 was realized in retail commercial sales. Wholesale light and power income was $554,000,000.

SEES MARKET BOUNCING LIKE RUBBER BALL

By FRANK H. MELOON

The story is heard in State St. that Matthew C. Brush, former Boston Elevated head, sent word to a Boston friend from his New York headquarters this week that it was dangerous to stay short of the market. He is said to have likened the market as bouncing around on bottom like a rubber ball. Well, the market this week has certainly taken a good bounce in the direction most people would like to see it moving.

M. C. Brush

* * *

A week or two of rising prices would put more people in good humor, and do more to inspire general confidence than anything else we think of at the moment. The belated new year rise dispersed a great deal of gloom. Political events are apt largely to determine the extent of this week's recovery, the best since mid-December.

* * *

Amusing was the statement made in brokerage circles that recent additions to Hudson Auto and General Motors were due to selling inspired by reports that a low level in employment and decreased agricultural buying power would lessen public buying. The situation in Auburn is a special one. The company did remarkably well during 1931, and no reason appears for the general idea that it will not do as well or even better this year.

* * *

It is an interesting fact that one of Greater Boston's finest new residences was the result of profits from a "tip" on Auburn Auto

* * *

As regards other automotive manufacturers, it can be said that they are considerably more optimistic this month than they were a year ago. In January of 1931 one big manufacturer told me he would be surprised if he sold as many cars as in 1930, but actually succeeded in bettering the 1930 record. Replacement demand is recent years has been the main factor aiding auto buying in this nation, which "rides on rubber" to a greater extent than any other, and 1932 finds replacement demand more insistent than ever before.

A prominent State St. investment banker reports that the bond brokers are thick again in customers' rooms as it has been in recent weeks. It is said that the bull market is brightening things up by borrowing. For example, "Joe" Solomon of Coconanut Grove orchestra is one of the good Grove cabaret talent.

* * *

As a matter of fact, a little entertainment in brokerage houses would not be entirely an innovation. We are told that in a number of London houses tea is served with great regularity. Even in State St. we have known of customers visiting certain houses because the large readers calling to the board boys put on a vaudeville act quite as good as the "barking" at the circus sideshows.

British-American Net Profit Large

London, Jan. 7.—Pamphlet report of British-American Tobacco Co., Ltd., for year ended Sept. 30, 1931, shows net profit of £5,334,648 after deducting income tax, the same as previously published. This is equivalent after 5 per cent and 6 per cent preference dividends to 20.14 per cent on ordinary stock and compares with £6,501,580, or 24.55 per cent on ordinary stock in preceding fiscal year.

Steel Resumptions Promise Good Gain

Since the beginning of the week resumptions of steel operations in various districts should result in a rather good weekly gain, unless there are some shut-downs between now and next Monday, not now looked for.

$200,000 Loan for Gloucester Made

Gloucester awarded to Cape Ann National Bank at 5.57 per cent $200,000 loan due June 15. Natick received no bids for $100,000 loan due Nov. 5.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

THE MARKET has seemed to derive its inspiration from a disposition to interpret actual news and gossip in a more favorable light. Reports that definitely favorable developments were imminent in the international situation were accompanied by talk that European speculative buying was in progress here.

Extent of 1931 Stock Deflation

Idea of the extent of the depreciation in stock market values during the past year is vividly shown in a compilation revealing that the shrinkage in the case of 100 leading common issues was $10,784,000,000. The deflation amounted to 50.3 per cent from the aggregate market value for the same stocks at the end of 1930. It compares with a drop of $8,700,190,000 two years ago and of $2,709,474,000 in 1929

Fall in Values Greater Than 1928 Gain

The 1931 fall in values was larger than the gain of $10,204,722,000 in 1928, Between the end of August, 1929, and Dec. 17, 1931, the value of the stocks used in the appraisal fell $32,173,000,000, or 76.5 per cent. In other words, these stocks are now selling for less than one-fourth of the prices they brought not quite two and a half years ago.

Trend of Railway Stocks Studied

Market students stress as quite significant the fact that railway shares have acted relatively better than other groups since the first of the year. Their contention is that if "the market goes as go the carrier issues" a period of comparative steadiness is an early prospect. Herstofore the rails have been the first to violate former low points on declining movements. More recently, however, industrials have preceded the rails downward.

Automobile Merger Rumors Received

Rumors of an impending merger involving Nash, Packard and Hudson have been revived in auto circles. These reports add that actual negotiations toward such a consolidation will await higher stock market prices. Usually merger prospects make profitable speculative propaganda, but the reveral of the story promises no such rewards at the present time.

Use of 1929 Stock Financing Traced

Current financial strength of numerous corporations is being financed through the issuance of additional stock during 1929 boom conditions recalls the advantageous use to which this new capital was put. To cite a few examples, Westinghouse retired all its $30,000,000 funded debt with the proceeds of the 12½ per cent additional stock sold about three years ago at 105. Partly from proceeds of stock subscribed in June, 1929, U. S. Steel completed its three year program involving redemption of $375,000,000 bonds. Of the present common stock, 12 per cent was issued in that year for $140 a share cash. Anaconda's stock capital included 22 per cent sold at $55 a share the middle of 1929 for retiring $134,000,000 bonds.

International Shoe Buys Own Stock

Confirmation of the reports that some companies were buying their own stock last year came with the announcement that International Shoe had used $12,038,365 in cash for purchase of 250,000 shares of its own stock, reducing dividend needs by $750,000 annually. Other companies also have been buying quietly and are likely to report on this action when they publish their annual statements in the coming months.

Allied Chemical's 1931 Earnings

In speculative circles the predictions are that Allied Chemical for 1931 will show earnings of around $6.20 to $6.30 a share on its stock, or slightly in excess of the regular $6 a share annual dividend requirements. One factor has been the sharp reduction in income from investments as a result of dividend cuts or omissions in the past year or so. Approximately 40 per cent of the tangible net assets of the company are represented in investments

The Decline in Carloadings

Freight car loadings for the week ended December 26 were in line with predictions, showing a decrease of 240,144, or 24 per cent, from the preceding seven days. The roads felt the effects of the curtailment of Christmas and the Saturday following. The total of 441,589 cars was 97,702, or 17.6 per cent under the same week of 1930 and 197,800 cars, or 30.9 per cent, below the like 1929 week

CONDITIONS IN CANADA SOUND

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 7 (AP)—Canada is weathering the world-wide business depression in a favorable manner and will be in an advisable position to participate in the first material advance, Donald M. Marvin, economist of the Royal Bank of Canada, says in his monthly business review issued today.

"Canada has been successful in maintaining her production and general business activities at the present levels when other countries are faced with conditions of the greatest difficulty," the review says. "Promising features in the present economic outlook include the healthy condition of savings deposits, the strong technical position of Canadian manufacturers and a prosperous gold industry."

Analyzing the condition of agriculture, it continues:

"Prices for all farm products have declined to very low levels and, with reduced crops in the West the value of Canadian field crops shows a serious reduction from previous years, being officially estimated for 1931 at $411,250,000 as compared with $631,583,000 in 1930 and $846,981,400 in 1929."

HIGHER PRICES PREVAIL IN BOSTON

Higher prices prevailed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes ranging from fractions to 8 points or better with rail shares leading the list upward. Boston & Albany was 3 points higher at 115, while Old Colony was 3 points above its previous closing level.

Boston & Maine prior preferred advanced 3 points and Atchison recorded a fractional gain. Utilities were mixed, with Edison Electric adding a point at 186, while American Telephone lowered over a point to 113⅝.

New England Public Service sold a point higher at 6⅛. Fractional advances were shown for First National Stores, Gillette, Kreuger & Toll, Stone & Webster and United Shoe.

Brockton will receive bids until noon, Jan. 11, for $600,000 loan due Nov. 7.

VICK'S PROFIT IS $348,376

For year ended Dec. 31, 1931 profit was $348,376 after expenses and taxes, but exclusive of profits and losses from sale of securities, which were carried to reserve for investment depreciation account. In 1930 the company reported net profit of $427,895 after expenses, interest, federal taxes and loss of $81,197 on sale of securities. Capital stock consists of 1 166,906 issued shares par $5.

Balance sheet as of Dec 31 shows investments, except investments in corporation's stock, carried at cost of $9,065,176. Market value of these securities on Dec. 31, last, was $8,579,789

BOND MARKET HAS STRENGTH

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—Strength in the rail and foreign list, more than offset continued dullness in the U. S. Government obligations in forenoon dealings on the bond market and advances and advances were preponderant in most sections of the list

German Government and municipal bonds continued to occupy the limelight, the 5½s gaining more than 2 points at 37. Prussia 6½s jumped 3 points to 82, while the Prussia 6s were up almost a point at 78.

Prominent rail issues to share in the buoyancy were New York Central 4½s, which went up 1½ to 67; Pennsylvania 4½s, up 1 at 67⅝; Frisco 4s, up 2½ at 27; Southern Railway 5s, up 1 at 82, and Missouri Kansas Texas 5s, up 3 at 65.

The U. S. Government list continued to run into offerings, with some members of this group showing slight declines. Liberty 3½s were quoted at 99.30, Liberty 1st 4¼s at 99.6, Liberty fourth 4¼s at 99.5, Treasury 4s, 9114; Treasury 3¾s of 41, 89.28, and Treasury 3s, 84.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Edward B. Smith & Co.—We would not be inclined to follow this movement.

Russell, Miller & Co.—The market reversed its action Wednesday, wiped out 75 per cent of the losses of the three previous days, overleaps the bounds of recent extreme pessimism and for the time being suggested a reversal in trend.

Shields & Co.—There is a possibility of an inflationary period but there is no evidence of real leadership thereto at the moment. Until there is, only temporary interruptions of the downward price trend are to be expected.

Whitney & Fiwel.—We do not advise following the rise shown by buying at advancing prices. We think that those who did not buy earlier in the week should temporarily postpone purchases.

SPECTATOR Says:

While rallies in the market have been none too frequent of late, there can be no gainsaying the fact that when they finally do materialize, past shortcomings are easily forgotten. In the parlance of the slogan maker, bullish interests can point to quality production, if not quantity.

Averages

While it will be but natural in view of past performances to have observers question the durability of the current upturn its sweeping vigor may be deemed to carry more than ordinary significance. In fact, as measured by the Dow-Jones industrial averages it was almost on a par with the automatic rebound which followed the establishment of the 1931 lows on Dec. 17 last.

At any rate, stressing the sunshine angle, it can truthfully be said that stock prices have moved to new high ground for the year, although with new records a somewhat dubious distinction at this time.

In Hot Water

Those professionals who have found it decidedly profitable to go short on every price bulge in recent months seem to themselves in plenty of hot water one of these days. For all one knows, the momentum of yesterday's recovery may yet carry to an extent few traders have visualized.

Some Selections

These divisions are utilities, foods, chain stores and tobaccos. The more promising issues, according to statistical opinion, in the above brackets, include Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American, American Telephone, United Gas Improvement, General Foods, National Biscuit, Borden Standard Brand, Drug, Inc., Woolworth, United Cigar Stores, Grocery, First National Stores, Kresge, American Tobacco B and Reynolds Tobacco B.

STOCKS RENEW RALLY SLOWLY IN WALL ST.

New York, Jan. 7—Important shares renewed yesterday's brisk rally more slowly in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. Pivotal issues started the session with an advance of a point or so, then encountered a brief period of quick profit-taking.

The creeping rise was resumed after early gains in several issues had been reduced and net losses shown by some.

DULL ON DECLINE

The trading turned dull while the profit-taking was effecting moderate declines from the early highs. In the profit-taking interest, American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Air Reduction saw selling. And New York Central lost most of its point rise.

At this time U. S. Steel, which had sold up a major fraction, gave up part of its gain. A rumor was around to the effect that U. S. Steel would made an offering of stock to its employees this year, but this was unconfirmed.

Tobaccos showed special firmness. A block of 10,000 shares of Reynolds "B" sold unchanged at the opening, and a slight advance followed. American Tobacco "B" was up more than a point, closely trailed by Liggett & Myers "B".

The rise in security prices was generally attributed more to antici pation of favorable news than to actual developments, but brokerage house opinion believed the rally could easily carry further.

It would be important commentators observed, to watch the market's response to reactions on realizing. In some circles the advance in stocks was regarded as largely technical.

PROGRESS ABROAD

Overnight dispatches from Europe shed little light on the reports that France and Great Britain had reached or were near an agreement on a reparations policy. Berlin advices confirmed rumors heard here to the effect that progress was being made toward concluding the private credit negotiations.

Bond dealers reported considerable buying of German bonds by French investors, the theory being, according to market gossip, that the Lausanne conference is expected to reveal a more conciliatory French attitude on reparations.

Sterling exchange rallied strong ly with the opening rate was $3.39¾, a rise f 3¾ cents.

Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, says:

"The year 1932, so far as British business is concerned, appears to me to be one in which any progress toward a definite upturn will be benefiting and subject to many disappointments." He believes that the depression has been long, too severe and too complicated in its incidence for anything like a rapid recovery to be either healthy or permanent. The time for make-believe is past, and all the intelligence and attention to another will, by a painful process of realism, have to give to the underlying force at work, he declares.

"Above all, the tr ple incompatibility of the progressive restrictions and debts, the existence of high tariffs and the working of a world gold standard must be kept before the minds of governments throughout the world."

CURB MARKET TONE FIRM

New York, Jan. 7— Rallying tendencies were slowed up after furthe ralight gains in early curb dealings today, but despite some profit-taking, the list displayed a firm undertone throughout the gra.ter part of the forenoon.

Consolidated Gas of Baltimore made the best showing among the utilities, chalking up a gain of 4 full point at 64. Substantial progress was recorded by American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Electric Bond & Share, Electric Power & Utilities, Niagara Hudson Power, United Gas and United Light & Power, most of these reaching their best levels of the week.

Cities Service finally broke through its resistance level on the upside, reaching 6, for the first time in a month or so.

Oils were dull, with Standard of Indiana in the limelight with a fractional upturn to 15¾.

Few price changes of significance were chalked up in the specialty list, although Aluminum managed to work up to 52 for a gain of slightly less than a point.

TO WOMAN OF TWENTY, KISS IS AN ADVENTURE

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

LOVE IS the magic spell which transforms a bald spot into a halo, gilds drab hair with refined gold and turns feeble-minded wisecracks into jewels of wit.

• • •

To a woman of twenty, a kiss is an adventure; to a woman of thirty, an experiment; to a woman of forty, a reassurance; and to a woman of sixty, a compliment.

• • •

When a man transfers his love to another woman, his wife has a chance of winning it back; but when he transfers it to golf, business, booze or his own sweet self-indulgence, she's a permanent widow.

• • •

Girls are flagrantly frank and candid, these days; and about the only thing that a sweet young thing would blush to admit is that she's never been kissed.

• • •

The wo[illegible] ... [illegible] and unselfish ... [illegible] just to ... [illegible]

Every successful beauty [illegible] to woman's unquenchable d[illegible]

When a g[illegible] ... [illegible] a man is never l[illegible] ... [illegible] as a conventional gesture [illegible] ... [illegible] in order to arouse [illegible]

• • •

A good woman can sometimes lead a man in the way he should go—but not before he has started going some other woman's way.

When a man has to ... knowledge that he is cra... about his own wi... days, he stops on ... gets a little guilty and ... getic about it?

Feeding Family of Five With $15 Budget

By MARTHA LEE.

"THREE CHEERS for 'Better Meals for Less Money,'" cheerfully chirrups Mrs. B. W. L. from Brookline. "But how shall I divide the $15 which Uncle Sam says is the proper proportion of my income to spend for food for a family of five?"

I hesitate to make out a cut and dried food budget, since any budget, like a paper pattern, has to be taken in here and let out there to meet individual requirements. Out of every dollar spent on foods, "Eben-As-Should-Know" (Uncle Sam's own Department of Agriculture) tells us that one-fifth (20c) should be spent for meat, egg and fish, one-fifth (20c) for milk, allowing at least one pint for each child and one-third of a quart for each adult; one fifth (20c) for vegetables and fruit, and one fifth (20c) for fats, sugars and other groceries. One quart of milk for each child and one pint for each adult is safer than the minimum given.

The department further goes on to tell us that milk should be the basis of the food budget. No meat, eggs or fish should be bought until the full amount of milk has been purchased, and then not more than one-fifth of the total food allowance should be spent for these items. Spend for fruit and vegetables just as much as you spend for meats. For fats, allow each day, two ounces (4 level tbsps.) for each adult, 1¼ to 2 ounces for each child.

For cereals and bread, spend from one-fifth to two-fifths of your total food allowance. One famous doctor says that no family of five should purchase meat until they have first purchased three quarts of milk.

Here's a pet penny-saver for using left-over lamb.

SPANISH LAMB

3 tbsps. butter
3 small onions
1 green pepper
1½ cups stewed tomatoes
1 cup cooked diced lamb
1½ cups cooked rice
1¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Fry the chopped onion and pepper in the butter for five minutes. Add the stewed tomatoes and cook until you have a rich, thick sauce. Then add the lamb, rice, salt and pepper. Heat thoroughly, stirring constantly, and serve hot.

And in boiling your rice wash it first and then drop it slowly through your fingers into a kettle of furiously boiling salted water. Cook rapidly uncovered for 20 minutes, when it should be soft. Drain through a sieve, place this over a saucepan containing a little boiling water and set to dry on the stove for a few minutes.

A slightly looking woman admitted her. After a long wait in the hall a small, dark-eyed man in a velvet jacket opened the door of the front room and motioned her in, hospitably.

"Tolari" The master. The man who Miss Seaman said could make her famous.

"My teacher, Miss Augusta Seaman—" she began in a tight, small voice.

He did not wait to hear about Miss Seaman. He wanted to try her voice. Right away.

"Miss Seaman. You must remember her. She studied with you, years ago in Chicago—"

Years ago . . . but he looked so young . . . Ofcourse. There was a mistake. It was the wrong Tolari. She knew it before he told her, laughing:

"Oh, old Caesare Tolari! But he has not taught for five years! Come, come! He is senile, a pathetic now. Only the funeral march left for him. You had better stay with me. Come, we shall try your voice."

Delightful Musicale

WE HAVE NEVER ENJOYED a morning MORE than yesterday when we attended the Boston Morning Musicale to hear Sigrid Onegin guest artist. She has the loveliest voice and an equally lovely personality. It was a pleasure to meet her later at lunch to tell her and her attractive husband, Dr. Pennoit of Austria how very much pleasure she gave to us all. Mrs. H. Parker Whitmington, first vice-chairman of the committee, presided at an informal committee meeting and several excellent suggestions were made, first and most important—BE EARLY for mid-morning coffee. After a cold ride her coffee is delightful, but you MUST be in your seats promptly at 11 o'clock and not tarry too long about the urns. If it is coffee or concert, remember you can have coffee any time and Paderewski comes but once. We are going to give Mrs. Whittington a column all to herself some day as being the most amiably efficient chairman we have ever seen, excepting of course her co-partner, Mrs. John Myers.

WEEKLY GAZETTE

Monday, Dec. 28th. My train from Cincinnati was two hours late which threw me off my schedule of work, and I found it hard to adjust myself, dishking a late train as much as I do a late guest.

In the evening to dine with John Erskine at his penthouse overlooking Central Park, and found Fannie Hurst, Helen Worden, Mrs. Dulce Biddle and George Hellman there; and the latter was amazed when I remembered a poem of his published 20 years ago in the old Cosmopolitan, when I was at Irvington-on-Hudson; and I even remembered that it was printed on a right-hand page of the magazine, and the amount of the check, very small, which he received for it. And Dr. Erskine played Chopin and Macdowell for us, and I marveled at his extraordinary talent, thinking the gods had been overgenerous in their gifts to this writer-musician. And, too, he talks as well as he writes, and the dinner he laid out for us was a work of art.

Tuesday Dec. 29th. Received a letter from Carl Van Vechten, amazed that I had not remembered there was an actress in "The Prince of Pilsen" whose first name was Diamond and Tonight Pyne told me that there is. Edward, he had known a lady similarly called, who had a sister Beryl. And then I remembered that I had once met Diamond Jim Brady, among the other jewels of Broadway; a man who attended every first night in the good old days.

To dinner with J. Denison, and then to the David Van Buren's for a couple of rubbers of bridge, and home in good season.

Wednesday, Dec. 30th: Accomplished more work than I have done in many weeks and on in the evening with a light heart to dinner at Mrs. Douglas Robinson's finding the Julian Streets and Miss Anne Morgan there, among others and Mrs. Robinson read us an original poem for the New Year very beautiful and full of fine feeling and sparkling stories were told around the table, and I was so happy for a few hours that I forgot even the depression.

Thursday Dec 31st: Delighted to learn that Foster Damon, of Brown University, is at work on the definitive life of Amy Lowell, which Houghton Mifflin will publish; and Houghton Mifflin will publish.

A friend told me today that he had purchased a Fragonard at an auction sale; which caused me to remember a story of the late Mr. Humphrey Ward. He had always been overshadowed by the fame of his wife, the novelist; but he was an authority on Fragonard, and once, some years ago, a gentleman asked him to come and appraise one of these pictures which he had in his possession. But the light was bad, and as the gentleman suggested that Mr. Ward come back another day, adding: "And please bring Mrs Ward if there is a Mrs Ward."

Not at all sad to see the old year pass and made innumerous mental resolutions for 1932, but fearful that I should not keep one of them. How can one go out to restaurants and hotels on New Year's Eve I never could understand for noisy celebrations and champagne are abhorrent to me. So I invited D and Marjorie Van Buren and J. Denison to dine quietly with me and play contract; and when we heard the midnight bells and whistles we were glad that we were snugly at home, and not out on flaming Broadway with the rabble.

Friday, Jan. 1st: A dismal day, yet I walked for miles in the rain pondering on politics and rumors of war in the Far East, and wondered when the burden which the cured old world is carrying would be lifted and we could all begin to live sanely and happily again. But one of my resolutions was that not to worry about cosmic things; and here I was, on the first day of the year, doing that very thing. But I did have the strength of character to remain at home, quietly and peacefully, in the evening.

Saturday, Jan 2nd: Hard at my writing all morning, and then with Margaret Case and Cecil Beaton to Long Island by motor, to lunch with Carmel Snow; and we noted the hideous gas stations all the way along our route, and wondered why these could not be put underground so that the beauty of the landscape would not be despoiled.

In the evening with Lady Vi to hear "The Mikado," and though I have listened to its music and lyrics at least 50 times, it thrilled me as of old, and the little Japanese actress, Hizi Koyke, very charming and she pronounced every difficult word as clearly as the American singers; and William Danforth, as always, the best Mikado I have ever seen. And Frank Moulan and Herbert Waterous most amusing.

• • •

Sunday, Jan. 3d: Determined to carry out my resolution to see some old friends, so to tea with Mary Biddle and then to call upon Gertrude Shonk and Drexel and Ian Biddle in their new apartment, after a long walk up Park ave., and in the evening to dine at Eve Fields. B. Ahearn the actor who plays Robert Browning in Miss Barretts of Wimpole Street there, and many others. Then with Mrs. Garrett, wife of our Ambassador to Italy, and Frank Crowninshield to the Empire State Building tower to view our city from that glorious height; and I was overwhelmed with the beauty of all that man had made, spread out so far beneath us. And I cannot believe as some cynics do, that all this will perish and has been created for nought.

Walker-Kearns Ceremony

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Jan. 7 (US)—Although only a small group of relatives and close friends witnessed the ceremony yesterday which made Constance Kearns, daughter of Commander Matthew J. Kearns of Montreal, Canada, the bride of Samuel Rinsland Walker of this city, cardinal interest was evinced in the nuptial event.

For Samuel, who is the son of the James L. Walkers of Mercersburg, Pa., has been for some time a popular member of the younger set in this city, and in addition Constance is a niece of Mrs. Cornelius Vera.

Constance, presented into Samuel's keeping by her father, donned for the occasion a gown of white satin with which she wore a veil of rose point lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The duties of best man were entrusted to the bridegroom's brother, Hayes Walker. There were no ushers.

Paul Bowser Needs Another Herodotus

There's nothing like addication. No, Sire-e-e! Just when you think you're right, a noble domed guy with horned rim spectacles comes along and proves you're all wrong. Mawruse, all wrong. Take modern wrestling, for instance. Having attended wrestling bouts for y'ars and y'ars in the old days, generally such boresome hugging and hauling ones we had difficulty in keeping awake, we thought the modern rough and tumble, sock-him-in-the-kisser and kick-him-in-the-slats affairs Paul Bowser's troupe has been thrilling us with this winter were a decided novelty. For pure and unadulterated action, that recent knockdown and dragout shindy between Nick Lutze and Charlie Strack certainly had anything we ever had seen backed off the boards. Jack Conway tells us Nick the Necker and Pat McKay are likely to put up just as wild a Donnybrook at the Arena tonight. But when the old Professor dropped in to see how we felt under the combined attack of neuritis and lumbago the New Year wished on us, and we remarked that we were sorry we would have to miss tonight's Lutze-McKay shindy, for modern wrestling's new rough and tumble regime had made us a confirmed mat addict, the old Professor raised educated eyebrows and corrected:

"These rough and tumble wrestling matches are not new. They are as old as the hills. To be sure present day wrestling differs from wrestling of 10, 20, 30 years ago. But present day wrestlers simply have gone back to the style of rough and tumble wrestling employed by the ancient Greeks. Have you forgotten your Homer? Don't you remember how he tells in the Iliad of the great wrestling match between Ajax and Ulysses, saying:

"Now to the grasp each manly body heads:
The humid sweat from every pore descends;
Their bones resound with blows, sides, shoulders, thighs,
Swell to each gripe and bloody tumours rise'"

There was no confuting the old Professor. "Their bones resound with blows," sings Homer as he smites his blooming lyre. It is plain that the ancient Greeks were not any more averse to taking a sock at each other on the mat than are Paul Bowser's pachyderms. We bow before superior eddication. We are almost ready to believe there is nothing new under the sun. The old Professor killed another pet theory of ours, too. Up until the old Professor shed the light of learning on us we thought that the late Martin Sheridan, many times Olympic champion, was the champion eater of the universe. We told the old Professor how we once had seen Martin devour an omelette of 36 eggs, wipe his lips and remark: "That was a pleasant little appetiser; many a man would have made a square meal of it."

"As far as modern athletes are concerned," agreed the old Professor, "your Martin Sheridan might have been champion. But Sheridan cannot compare with some of the ancient Greek wrestlers and Olympians. Herodotus tells of one Aegean athlete who consumed 60 pancakes at one sitting, and of another who was considered a lamentably light eater because he limited himself to six and one-half pounds of meat every meal. But the greatest eater of them all, according to Herodotus, was the famous wrestler, Milo, who devoured a whole ox at one sitting."

All we have to say to that, Professor, is that Paul Bowser should fire Frank Smith and hire old Herodotus as his press agent. Frank can tell some good ones, but he and Baron Munchausen will have to take a back seat to any guy who tells one about a wrestler devouring a whole ox just to get up an appetite for breakfast.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FOOTBALL IS SLIPPING AT WESLEYAN

Middletown, Ct., Jan. 7 (AP)—Football at Wesleyan University is no longer the reliable source of finances it formerly was, figures announced today revealed.

The average net income from football the university announced dropped from $9000 to $400 in 1931. The income from one game played away was $1200 less than the average for the last five years, and that from another game $400 less than the average of the last two games played there.

Football expenses were $3000 more than formerly because of the game with Columbia, played at Middletown, and the payment of a guarantee to the opponent.

At the same time, football remained the only fall sport to show greater receipts than expenses. For the season, varsity football receipts totalled $13,421, as against expenses of $12,084, and freshman football receipts reached $918, as against expenses of $230.

Other fall sports showed deficits as follows:

Varsity soccer, receipts $370, expenses $1238; freshman soccer, receipts $50 expenses $160, and cross country, receipts $25, expenses $200.

Wilson Crosby, with two, and Wood, Pell, Palmer and Martin with a tally apiece added to the Crimson total.

"He is definitely off our lists. Not that Dempsey fears him, but that the 'tipsy Lith' has made his last smart crack and will not make a thin dime off any Dempsey gate."

Although the Cubs engaged in a strenuous battle with the Brooklyn-Toronto game was a thriller, but there are thousands of fans who prefer the Canadian-American League type of hockey to the present day N. H. L.

The Bruins were shorthanded and crippled when they departed for Detroit. Harry Oliver was left at home, as he had not recovered from his leg injury, while George Owen is generally excused from the western trips.

---

Coupled with the absence of Oliver and Owen, Eddie Burke is troubled with a strained leg muscle. Lionel Hitchman has a bad ankle and a bruised back and Lou Thompson is still bothered from the Charlie Conacher buildup, he stopped with the unprotected part of his right arm.

If the Bruins are not successful in Detroit tonight Manager Art Ross will send out an SOS for George Owen to join the club in Chicago for Sunday night's game.

---

Under the existing conditions if the Bruins can corral one point on this trip, they will have performed creditably, for Detroit has strengthened since Emms and Carson arrived, and the Windy City is a tough spot for any visiting team.

---

Due to his willingness to bore in, regardless of the heavy going, Dit Clapper is now the fair-haired boy of the Bruins.

After watching Joe Primeau against the Bruins, there are no grounds for suspecting that the little Toronto centre ice man is not entitled to 19 assists for the season.

---

Speaking of play makers, Bud Cook of the Bruins ranks with the best. He would be far more valuable to the Rosamers at centre ice and will doubtless be shifted next season.

MINORS TO DROP LEAGUE HEADS

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—Minor league club owners evidently started something at West Baden, Ind., last month when they decided to replace the presidency of their association with an unpaid commissioner.

Since then several club owners have suggested that their respective leagues do likewise with economy as the chief reason. The latest league that may be affected is the Mississippi Valley League. Dr. Charles Logan, president of the Keokuk team of that circuit, suggests the move to save money.

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—Louis Stoddard will continue as chairman of the United States Polo Association for another year. He was re-elected at the annual meeting of the association here.

Play of Baker Hockey History's Highlight

William L. Carleton, better known as Bill Carleton, was a member of the old Dorchester Hockey Club, one of the first teams to adopt the Canadian game in this country. He was a defense man and continued to play until about 1915. He has in all probability seen as many, if not more, hockey games than any one in these parts. He has been acting as a timer in amateur, college and professional games for years.

By WILLIAM L. CARLETON
As told to Bill Grimes.

"Say, Bill, what was the greatest game of hockey you ever saw?" I have been asked.

The more I mull over that question, the harder it is to pick between the many contests in which Hobey Baker took part. Whatever game it was Hobey Baker was in it.

Back in 1913, Princeton was represented by a two-man team, Hobey Baker an. Wen Kuhn, although you might possibly include Kilner, the right wing, but the others were very mediocre.

In this half, Pete Sortwell caged the first Harvard goal and anoth after the start of the second half, Steve Hopkins passed to Bud Phillips, who scored, and the teams were deadlocked.

Soon after half time Bob Willetts broke the tie and Harvard took the lead for the first time after a solo rush the length of the surface. But, just 16 seconds later, Hobey Baker and Wen Kuhn rallied into the Crimson zone and Hobey scored.

As neither team was able to score again before the bell, the game went into overtime. Then Hobey, who must have skated at least twenty miles that evening was buried into the boards in front of the timers' box.

He was stunned for a moment but regained his feet and stayed in the game. There was no substitution in those days, and had Hobey retired, he was out for the rest of the game.

Although Hobey fought courageously to break the tie, his stamina had been sapped by more than an hour's play and he was unable to shake himself loose.

Immediately after play had resumed Steve Hopkins jumped through the Princeton defense and scored, and before the close of the overtime Bud Phillips assured Harvard of a victory by caging the fifth goal.

I think that I have seen the best players in the game and to my way of thinking Hobey Baker was the greatest of them all, and my opinion is based on the opinions of many others who have seen the game for years.

Tigers Battled Great Harvard Team in 1913

Late in January of that year, the Tigers came over to meet one of the greatest of all time Harvard teams, which was captained by Barry Gardiner, a great goalie. The Harvard line was composed of Steve Hopkins, Pete Sortwell, Bud Phillips and John P. Morgan, 3d, with Bob Willetts and Goodale on the defense, the latter replacing in the game. There was no substitution in those days, and had Hobey retired, he was out for the rest of the game.

Although Hobey fought courageously to break the tie, his stamina had been sapped by more than an hour's play and he was unable to shake himself loose.

Wrestlers KO Each Other and Bout Is Declared Draw

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—A new quirk in wrestling—a double knockout—was in the records today. Karl Pojello, Chicago mat-man, and George Zarynoff, Ukrainian champion, were knocked unconscious when they bumped heads accidentally in their bout at the St. Nicholas Arena last night, blood spurting from a nasty gash on Zarynoff's forehead. The match was called a draw.

SWAT SULTAN THINKS HE'S WORTH IT

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—Having taken only five minutes to dispose of such pressing problems as his 1932 contract, Bob pitching staff of the New York Yankees and the winner of Bob next American League race, Babe Ruth settled down today to his annual winter chore of fighting the fat.

Not that there is much fat to fight this time. Starting intensive gymnasium training yesterday, the home run specialist weighed 225½ pounds. Seven years ago his mid-winter weight was 31 pounds more than that.

George Herman is confident of stirring up a bull market in home runs this year and sees that Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, should share this confidence to the extent of tendering him another $80,000 contract.

"I had a great year in 1931 and I'd like another two-year contract," quoth the Babe as he pedaled a stationary bicycle in Artie McGeown's gym. "But I'll take eighty grand for one year. I haven't talked to Col. Ruppert about it yet, but once we get together everything will be duck soup."

"We'll have a swell pitching staff," he said. "Pipgras and Ruffing were held back by illness last year. Comes is a star and Rhodes should have more self-confidence. And we got a dandy infield coming up from the coast in this Frank Crosetti. He's a hustler."

The opening of the Ruth training season was a gala affair. Some 30 photographers and motion picture cameramen and reporters attended. The Babe boxed, ran on a treadmill, rode a stationary bike, chinned himself and lifted dumbells. He will work out about three times a week.

Giants Send Out Contracts to 35

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—An indication of how far the next major league baseball policy of economy is due to come to light soon. The New York Giants put 35 contracts for the coming season in the mail yesterday, and although Secretary Jim Tierney would say nothing about the amounts involved fans expert that they will hear soon about any important salary cuts.

New York Jan. 7—Tommy Hitchcock, a 10-goal player for many years, has been cut to the 9-goal with a 10-goal handicap rating. Not only that, but Tommy is two steps away from the pack for there are no nine-goal men. Winston Guest, Eric Pedley, Elmer Boeseke, Jr., and Cecil Smith are ranked at eight goals.

INJURED ARM SLOWS LUTZE FOR McKAY GO

REILLY TESTS AL MORELLI TONIGHT

Jack Conway Picks Lutze to Win Over McKay

Jack Conway today picked Nick Lutze to win from Pat McKay in their finish mat bout at the Arena tonight.

Jack, who has an average of .915 for picking winners in 1931, begins a new year as a prophet. Incidentally, Conway's 1931 mark set a new world's record for picking winners of boxing and wrestling matches. Jack surprised his own previous record established in 1923.

By RINGSIDE

Nick Lutze, Southern California heavyweight wrestler, will be handicapped by the right arm he injured in his recent bout with Charley Strack, when he tackles Pat McKay, Irish champion, in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena tonight.

Lutze for a time tried to have the date of tonight's match set back, but McKay insisted that Nick go through on the original date.

It was only last Friday night that Lutze won over Strack after 2h. 44m. of grappling. This was one of the fastest bouts ever staged in the Hub.

The winner of the Arena bout will be in line to get a match with Henri DeGlane, world's champion. The latter will be at the ringside tonight.

Pat Reilly May Stop March of Morelli

While Lutze will be given another acid test, Al Morelli is apt to meet his waterloo at the hands of Pat Reilly of the University of Texas.

"Bibber" McCoy is returning to the mat against the veteran Charlie Hanson. McCoy may be asked to tackle Al Morelli again.

Billy Bartush, who has been signed for several matches by Promoter Bowser, has been pitted against Charlie Leahman, who in his debut in a Boston ring threw Ed Don George before the former champion got warmed up.

SPORTS REEL

The Babe loses some avoirdupois. Swathed in blankets and towels following his first gymnasium workout of the year, BABE RUTH, the mighty batter of the New York Yankees, is shown after losing a few of the many pounds he expects to be rid of before opening the spring training season in Florida. (International Newsreel photo.)

Paul de Give's name doesn't fit him when he's guarding the nets for the Harvard varsity sextet. He rarely gives, no matter how heavy the bombardment. He is only a sophomore and has shown enough to cause hockey critics to predict he will rank with the greatest of Crimson goalies.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

No matter what he says, Max Schmeling really doesn't want to fight. In an interview, he said he had no intentions of getting married.

The big coward.

A New Haven wrestler refused to accept a decision over his rival because he was "disgusted with his showing." The milenium will have arrived when a performer refuses to accept his purse for the same reason.

Ellsworth Vines, national tennis champion, will quit college to devote more time to tennis. He'll cling to the net.

It is rumored that the professional tennis players, in order to make fans think a match is a pretty ferocious affair, are now calling it "forty hate" instead of "forty love."

Here's a chance for fat men to do a patriotic service. The United States bob-sled team needs ballast for the coming races at Lake Placid.

Down at Tropical Park, Miami, the use of spurs or whip on a horse is not permitted. What the horses we bet on need to give them speed is an outboard motor.

Hot dog stocks dropped to a new low with the announcement that Babe Ruth is being limited by his trainer to two weals a day.

A chess player in a recent tournament died suddenly as he was playing. His opponent was not aware of it for two days.

Lenz and Culbertson, instead of playing bridge, are really training, according to secret reports, for a bout with Schmeling.

Here's one way Sharkey can get a shot at Schmeling: Buy a rifle.

HARGRAVE SET FOR BIG YEAR AS BRAVE

By JOE CASHMAN

Bill Hargrave, erstwhile Senators, Browns and Tigers catcher and now on the Braves' roster, refuses to share the opinion of those who believe that the local National League entry needs another receiver to get very far in the 1932 pennant struggle.

Back from his home in Fort Wayne, Ind., Bill says he is in the best shape of his career after weeks of hunting, fishing and tree splitting and expresses confidence that Al Spohrer and he will furnish the Warriors all the catching strength they require to make a good showing in the coming campaign.

The veteran catcher, drafted from Baltimore by the Braves last fall, will be starting his 14th season of pro ball when he reports at St. Pete next month, yet he is only 31 years old.

During his 10-year career in the American League, Bill was always a fair receiver, a good thrower and a great hitter either right or left handed, and it caused much amazement when he was permitted to drift back to the Orioles late last summer.

Hargrave Clubbed Path Back to Big Leagues

It was the second time since breaking into the majors that he had been released to the bushes and on each occasion he batted his way back to fast company. With Detroit in '27, by hitting .306 at Toronto and with the Braves by clicking the agate at a .348 clip during his short stay at Baltimore.

Hoosier Bill started out with Waterbury, Ct., in the Eastern League in 1919. He was a catcher but was converted into a third baseman. In 1920 he was sold to New Haven and shifted to the outfield. The following year he went back to third base and in '22 returned to the backstop berth, hit for .321 and was sold by the Profs to Washington.

He remained with the Senators for two years and was then traded to St. Louis, where he spent 1925 and 1926.

Backstop Sidetracked to Toronto in '27.

He was sidetracked to Toronto in '27, but the next spring he was up again with Detroit, where he stayed until sold to the Senators again at the start of last season.

He had an average of .329 when waivers were asked on him in August, but, for some undetermined reason, he was not held up and back he went to the Orioles.

With a wife and four children to support, Bill had been in the habit of working as a lineman for the Fort Wayne Light & Power Co. during off-seasons, but there was no job for him this winter and he had an opportunity to get in great shape by spending most of his time in the open.

He now weighs 180 pounds, somewhat less than he did when last season closed, and he expects to work off five more pounds before going South to prove he is the one more good catcher the Braves require, according to the critics.

Canadians Cancel Stanley Stakes

Toronto, Jan. 7 (AP)—Stanley Produce Stakes, the richest Canadian horse race, has been cancelled the Ontario Jockey Club has announced through a letter to owners with nominations for the 1932 race. In its place, the Stanley Foal Stakes, with a $5000 added purse, will be run instead next fall.

The Stanley Produce Stakes had an added value of $10,000 last year

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston was watching Ernie Schaaf train for his bout with Jack Dorval at the Boston Garden a week from tomorrow night, when Jack Sharkey gave him a large hello.

Sharkey was telling Mr. Boston what he would do to Max Schmeling if he ever got the German heavyweight into the ring again Henri DeGlane, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, popped into the party.

"You're in splendid condition," Sharkey said to DeGlane.

"Why shouldn't I be in shape," remarked DeGlane good-naturedly. "Just got back from Paris, where I had a fine vacation with my folks. The champagne in France is very good.

Mr. Boston

"There is also very little unemployment in France. Everybody is quite prosperous.

"You would draw a lot of money if you were to box in Paris. Everybody over there is anxious to see you in action.

"Jeff Dickson has an arena that seats 20,000. He scales his house from $1 to $4 and draws large crowds."

"I was in France when in the Navy," said Sharkey, "At the time I was broke, but I still managed to have a good time. Sailors always do have a good time, somehow.

"I intend to make a trip to Europe soon. Perhaps I'll take a trip to France in the spring."

"I have to be going," went on DeGlane, "I am taking lessons on the accordion."

Mr. Boston smiled at the thought of the world's greatest wrestler going in for music.

"I play the accordion a little," said Sharkey. "I bought a saxophone a few months ago, and made life miserable for the folks at home until I mastered it a bit.

"I also like to drum away at the piano. I would give most anything I have to be a good piano player."

Joe Jacobs has wired Eddie Mack that Schmeling will try to flatten his spatring partners at the Arena on Monday night. It seems Max wants to find out if there is still dynamite in his right duke.

Mack says his show is roaring on all cylinders. The appearance of Schmeling on the card has aroused the interest of the fans.

The ten-round bout between Mickey Bishop of Stoughton and Billy Hood of England should also furnish action. Bishop is New England's most promising middleweight, while Hood proved in his skirmish with Leo Larive that he is a first class ring warrior.

Bill Carey, president of the New York Garden, arrived in town this morning to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the local Garden.

Now that the Schmeling-Walker bout has been definitely set for Miami, Fla., Eddie Mack is going ahead with plans for his special, which will leave Boston on February 13 and arrive in Miami on February 20. It will leave for Miami on the trip home on February 27 and will arrive here two days later.

Macomber, Bayard Tuckerman and Charles F. Adams here on Saturday. # CHEVROLET MEN IN TWO-DAY MEETING

More than 1400 Chevrolet dealers, associated bankers, and retail salesmen from the Boston and Portland zones are gathered in Boston today for a two-day conference with executives from the central office in Detroit.

Under the direction of H. J. Klinger, vice-president and general sales manager, the Chevrolet retail organization will formulate plans for 1932. Klinger will be assisted here by W. E. Holler, assistant general sales manager, and a special group of officials who are touring important eastern cities.

The Boston meeting is the second of a series of 50 which will take place in as many key points throughout the nation. The first was held in New York.

The hosts at the local gathering are H. L. Horton, manager of the Atlantic coast region, H. J. Walsh, manager of the Boston zone, and F. J. Hackett, manager of the Portland zone.

The convention will center around the Statler Hotel and the Shubert Theater, where special demonstrations of Chevrolet products will be staged.

The morning session today will be devoted to dealers and associated bankers, with speeches by Mr. Klinger and Mr. Holler. At luncheon in the Statler, the installation of new officers of the 100-Car Club, an organization composed of Chevrolet's leading salesmen, will take place.

As a further honor to these star salesmen, they will be given a banquet tonight in the Statler by the Chevrolet Motor Co.

In the afternoon the special demonstrations at the Shubert will take place, with playlets, monologues, dialogues, talking, pictures and other features. Friday's program calls for an open house, at which time dealers may discuss their individual problems with Chevrolet executives.

Bell, who explained to Judge Coxe that he had to get work to save his wife and child from starving, found a telegram waiting at his home instructing him to report for work today.

Water-logged Pound Envies the Dollar

Defeated in her desperate battle to maintain the gold parity of the pound sterling, England, in her bitterness, is railing at the United States and France—consumed with envy at the impregnable position of their currencies.

"WE HAVE GOT TO KNOCK AMERICA AND FRANCE FROM THEIR GOLD PERCH," says the London Evening Standard.

"If England, Germany and Italy," it continues, "combine on this tribute from war debts and reparations, OFF THEIR GOLD PERCH AMERICA AND FRANCE WILL HAVE TO COME."

It was only a few months ago that England was crying as piteously as Caesar to Cassius, "Help me, ere I sink." She was appealing to the United States and France for gold to buttress her diminishing supply, and the United States and France, still trusting in the integrity of England's word, responded with huge loans of gold.

If we remember rightly, a joint credit by the United States and France of $250,000,000 was transferred to England. This debt has not yet been extinguished.

When England, on a Sunday three months ago, made her decision to abandon the gold standard, the announcement of it on the following morning came as a bolt from the blue upon her trustful creditors. Every government and every individual who had a penny on deposit in an English bank underwent, in the moment of that announcement, a loss of one-third of his deposit.

The only plea that England could make was that to further maintain gold payments was beyond her power. This excuse has been accepted by the world without protest and with less outward resentment than could have been expected.

It ill becomes, however, the author of such widespread losses and the beneficiary of a self-achieved debt reduction on so vast a scale, to turn upon nations who have suffered heavily from English policy, and to threaten them with further injury.

AS INGRATITUDE, THIS IS BASE ENOUGH. As envy—turned to hate—well, perhaps it is better to forego its characterization.

Now, there is no mystery about this crusade against the dollar. In England it is a very definite reality.

The pound sterling has lost its position as the denominator of world trade. Nowhere is this fact so clearly realized as in England.

A merchant in Singapore, who wishes to draw a bill of exchange against a shipment that will not reach its destination for a period of sixty or ninety days, does not want to draw in pounds worth $3.40 on one day, $3.30 the next, and maybe less or more on the following day. Over the life of an ordinary bill of exchange such fluctuations constitute an independent and hazardous speculation.

For some reason, the franc, notwithstanding its stability, has never been a popular medium for transactions of this type. IT IS THE DOLLAR WHICH IS LOOMING THROUGHOUT THE WORLD AS THE SAFE, STABLE AND UNIVERSALLY PREFERRED MEDIUM FOR INTERNATIONAL DEALINGS.

The water-logged pound, with its decks awash, looks upon its successor, the dollar, with a feeling which is reflected in the recent outbursts of the British press.

From the pound's lowly position in the world's exchanges, the gold parity of the dollar seems like a lofty perch, indeed.

ENGLAND WOULD LIKE TO "KNOCK US OFF," BUT SHE WILL NOT SUCCEED.

New Hampshire's Message to Washington

If Mr. Hoover and our so-called leaders in government have any doubt of the thoughts uppermost in the minds of the American people they should consult the extraordinary Democratic victory in New Hampshire.

Mr. Rogers, the Democratic candidate, was elected to Congress by a majority of 3000 in a district which is ordinarily Republican by 15,000 and which has been constantly Republican, with but one or two exceptions, since the Civil War.

Mr. Rogers is a progressive man. He was nominated for the office by a progressive Democratic convention which gave him a progressive set of principles upon which to appeal to the voters and which he accepted and advocated with enthusiasm.

Let us who are interested in the welfare and the progress of our country read some brief, verbatim extracts from this set of principles upon which Mr. Rogers was elected to Congress by the people of New Hampshire.

"It pledges its candidate to the hearty support of the Wagner unemployment bill, which was passed by Congress and vetoed by President Hoover.

"It pledges its candidate to support legislation for the repeal of the federal prohibition law and for the enactment of such legislation as will give to the States the right to determine their own policy in relation to the traffic in intoxicating liquor.

"It pledges its candidate to support a reasonable bond issue for public improvements to assist in ending the present unemployment.

"It pledges its candidate to the support of all legislation for the maintenance of an adequate Army and Navy and to oppose any reduction in the defensive forces."

This is a simple American program for the relief of American unemployment and the restoration of business confidence by the issuance of a national prosperity loan, for relief from the vicious evils of the present prohibition system and for relief from the unwise, unpatriotic, un-American policy of scuttling the American Navy.

If we are still living in a democracy, if the right of the people to have policies of their own choosing is anything more than a pretense, every public official at Washington from the President down must put into operation at once these sensible American principles which have been approved by the people in every recent election from Ohio to Michigan to New Jersey to New Hampshire.

In search of a means of promoting national temperance, Finland, like the United States, adopted prohibition. For twelve years, like the United States to date, it struggled to enforce prohibition laws.

And when the good men and women of Finland (the sane, sober majority of TRUE TEMPERANCE advocates) saw the evils that flowed in the wake of prohibition, they PROMPTLY GOT RID OF THE CAUSE OF ALL THEIR EVILS and voted prohibition OUT.

How different it is in these enlightened United States! Our political braves realize the gravity of the situation and TALK about belling the cat.

Finland DID AWAY WITH THE CAT. Here it is all talk and NO ACTION.

Why not let our people have a chance to decide the issue, as was done in Finland? Cannot our people be trusted to vote what they want done in the matter?

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Burlesque

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—The rise and fall of burlesque, so ably chronicled in Bernard Sobel's jubilant romanza, "Burlycue," reveals an astonishing list of stars whose incubating ground was rowdy fields of slap-stick. Indeed, out of the frenzied zig-zag came the modern musical revue.

Threaded through the tinseled pageant are such names as Al Jolson, W. C. Fields, George Jessel, Alexander Carr, Fred Stone and Dave Montgomery, James Barton, Leon Errol, Frisco, Gus Edwards, Fannie Brice, Sophie Tucker, Eddie Cantor and Weber and Fields.

Today burlesque in New York is confined to a robust and carnal continuous show at movie prices exploited by Billy Minsky, who used to be a newspaperman himself. In the outland, burlesque is caustic comedy a coming generation knows little about.

Early burlesque was rooted in the miasmatic fungi of honky-tonks—the term of the day for museums, saloons and dance halls. Such sterling performers as Junie McCree, Shaw and Lee, Harry Fox, Hoey and Lee, McIntyre and Heath, Charlie Murray, Grace La Rue and Joe E. Brown came out of this obscurity.

Frances White and her glass stick coiffure were discovered in a Pacific honky-tonk by the late William Rock. And Frances rose to Broadway stardom. Unhappily some of the greater funmakers did not reach the heights they often deserved.

No comedian today was a greater laugh provoker than Sliding Billy Watson. But he never transcended burlesque. The late Joe Welch, a superb penseroso, could bring the same lumpy choke as David Warfield, another recruit from burlesque. But Joe carried on heroically, blind and paralyzed, in cheap variety to the end.

Jean Bedini was the burlesque scout unearthing gold among dross. He salvaged George White from obscurity, gave Cantor his first engagement in burlesque and found Clark and McCullough. And Joe Cook in his memoirs says, "Bedini started me in the show business."

Recently I attended a gathering which included the last of the burlesque queens—Rose Sydell. I saw her in affluence, a jowled, plumed and Amazonian creature in tights who graced "London Belles." Remember? I expected somehow to behold a faded, broken old lady. Instead I saw a tall, striking blonde as fashionably dressed and imperious as those cool and definite matrons emerging from a matinee at the Met.

* * *

I told her of days when I sat goggly-eyed in People's Nigger Heaven in Over-the-Rhine Cincinnati to watch her. Her attitude toward her profession has a touch of old Roman bravado. One might have been talking to Mrs. Pat Campbell about an early London triumph. Miss Sydell, in private, is the wife of William Campbell, long her manager, and their married life has been of singular devotion. In Brooklyn they own a block of apartment houses an escape from rigors of a northern winter by occupying their villa in Florida.

Down in Jamaica, L. I., lives another valiant burlesque trouper—Al Reeves. The descriptive Mr. Sobel describes him as "denoting the Dickens idea of la joie de vivre." He wears a pint sized yellow diamond and cuff links of walnut sized sapphires along with a vest that might blanket next year's Derby winner. Few oldsters forget his banjo studded with chip diamonds and the anti-climax when the drum burst into an illuminated American flag.

* * *

O yes, Charles Winninger, Billy B. Van, Lester Allen and Bert Lahr were burlesquers. Upon reflection I fear my sense of humor has not progressed much since days of green whiskered comics with headlight noses. I still think a whang on the Fanny—Frances on Park ave.—as a beefy lady stoops to retrieve a kerchief is far more hilarious than the loathsome antics of a Jean Malin or other pansy performers. Screams the wattled old so and so hobbling back to his chimney corner.

Just Folks

Achievement

I think no trouble ever came my way
But what it left a joy for every ache.
When I against despair resistance make
And strive to hold the dreaded foe at bay,
Whatever he the outcome of the day,
Always a sense of pride I seem to take
From holding fast against the winds that shake,
And braving the conclusion, come what may.
Men find small pride in pleasure. Out of care,
Danger and doubt and hazard heroes rise;
Men, after all, life's tasks are glad to share.
The brightest smiles are those which follow sighs.
Man's greatest glory, and I think 'tis God's,
Is having gained a victory 'gainst the odds.

'Still Harping on My Daughter'

By Claude G. Bowers

IF ANY ONE believes that the conspiracy to saddle on the backs of the American people the debts of the fourteen nations that owe us on the loans is over, his credulity is childish. The selfish interests behind the conspiracy on this side of the water are not going to give up the fight.

There is not a scintilla of doubt that some such understanding was reached in the secret conferences of the American President with the visiting statesmen of England and France. There were few, if any members of Congress who did not feel this to be true. And when Congress added the amendment against the reduction or transfer of the debts to Americans it meant a vote of "no confidence" in the Administration.

* * *

We Took Nothing From the Germans

The next step in the development of the conspiracy will come when the reparations conference composed of the representatives of the debtor nations who get the reparations meet and act. They will appear very sympathetic toward Germany. Even France will be tender of Germany for once. They will tell us that something must be done to lift the horrible reparations burden from the backs of the German people.

Well, we have nothing to do with those reparations. We thought them outrageous at the time. Wilson thought them out of all proportion, and said so. And thinking of the German people then—thirteen years ago—we refused to put a penny of obligation on the backs of the Germans in the way of reparations.

We thought it outrageous for the European allies to take the German ships, making it difficult for them to carry on the trade necessary to the existence of the people; and we thought it unfair to take all the colonies of the Germans — depriving them of the capacity to pay the war debt. And so we took no colonies.

No reparations to America can be charged as cruelty to the Germans.

And so we have nothing to do with the reparations conference. If France, England and the other debtor nations think that the salvation of Europe depends upon scaling down the reparations that is their business, and they can act.

But the nations in the reparations conference, who have been getting the reparations we did not get and did not want, will take the position that they cannot cut down on the reparations unless we cut down on the debts correspondingly. That means that they will lose nothing by their sympathy, because the burden will all be passed on to us.

To us, who did not take or ask reparations to crush the German people.

To us, who did not take the German colonies that the others took.

And on what ground? On the ground that these fourteen nations that have spent two billion dollars in a year increasing the strength of their armies and navies cannot pay us what they owe unless Germany gives them the money with which to pay.

"Capacity to pay!" With a deficit of billions in our Treasury now, and increasing instead of diminishing, and with taxes certain to be drastic to balance our budget, we are supposed to have the capacity to pay the debts of these fourteen nations, some of them highly prosperous compared with us.

That the conspiracy is still active is evident in the tone of the Administration press. We are hearing now quite solemnly that when we made the loans we did it in a perfunctory manner, with the idea that, of course, we would not ask the money back. This is not remotely in accordance with the facts.

It was William G. McAdoo, acting with Wilson, that proposed the loans; it was McAdoo who negotiated the loans. And this is what he says in his memoirs (page 415):

"I do not hesitate to say that it would have been impossible to secure from the Congress of the United States authority to make gifts to the Allies of the stupendous amount of money represented by these loans. Every borrowing government understood that it was receiving loans, not gifts, and that it was expected to repay them."

What effrontery to say that the American people never wanted to be paid back!

Again we go to McAdoo, who knows more about the loans than anyone else:

"When I went to the people of the United States on a speaking tour in the first Liberty Loan campaign I had to explain with meticulous care to every audience that all advances to foreign powers were loans which would, from time to time, be repaid to the United States." (Page 415.)

Congress did not expect or want the money paid back? What mockery!

Merciful to Whom?

But now we are hearing about being merciful. Merciful to whom? To the 7,000,000 men walking the streets of America denied the right to work? To the 2,000,000 men, women and children who are in desperate distress? To the vast army of American miners fighting starvation? To the millions of farmers whose farms are being foreclosed at the rate of almost a million a year?

No; no plea for mercy for these is heard. We must be merciful to the people of fourteen nations—merciful to prosperous France with her 250,000 unemployed, her budget balanced, her taxes low—merciful by putting on Americans the merciless task of paying the war debts of the world.

Gov. Ely's Achievements

The outstanding achievement of Joseph B. Ely's administration as Governor has been his excellent program for relief of unemployment.

Useful work has been supplied directly and indirectly to probably 25,000 persons.

A great many persons in that number have been saved from the demeaning effect of a dole and the State has been saved the extravagant expense of the unproductive dole.

The State has been able to expand its highways, develop its hospitals and sanatoria and enlarge its institutions while securing the benefit of the decreased costs of materials, in some projects as high as 30 per cent.

These projects are financed not by increasing the already high tax rate at this time, but through the issuance of short-term obligations (prosperity loans, they can be accurately called), which the public will gladly liquidate when prosperity is completely restored to them.

Governor Ely has accomplished many other commendable things, and his efforts to improve the financial status of our cities and banks have been especially praiseworthy.

The most helpful and the most encouraging note of Governor Ely's message to the Legislature is that the State will be able to continue the beneficent and wise relief program.
